Paul Laub, city renew feud with clash over Christmas tree lights

*City sidewalks, busy sidewalks Dressed in holiday style...
City street lights, even stop lights
Blink a bright red and green as Shoppers rush home with their treasures.*

Silver Bells

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE HOLIDAY season usually is a time to spread goodwill, forgive debts and make merry, even in the company of those with whom you have disagreed. Wars have ground to a halt for a few hours on Christmas Day.

But the city and businessman Paul Laub say "bah, humbug" to all of this good cheer — at least when it comes to relationships between these arch-rivals.

As the lights on the official Carmel Holiday Tree blink colorfully at passersby, the city council finds itself embroiled in another legal feud with Laub.

And the lawyers — Don Freeman for the city and Hugo Gerstl for Laub — aren't even arguing the legalities of mini-marts or in-lieu parking fees or photo-processing.

This time the battle is over Christmas lights, those traditional blinking colorful strings of bulbs that are synonymous with the holiday spirit.

And while most of us toast each other with egg nog and proclaim "Merry Christmas," Gerstl and the council have less charitable words to say about each other.

Gerstl calls the city "Scrooge" and has threatened the city with a harassment suit as a Christmas present.

Councilman David Maradei retorts that Laub is just another Grinch only interested in making a buck while not caring what happens to Carmel.

And, Administrative Services Director Greg D'Ambrosio contends that the low lights and extension cords may have posed a safety hazard to pedestrians.

The tale began the day after Thanksgiving, when Laub's employees of the Ocean Avenue Paradise building and Country Store installed Christmas lights in city-owned trees on public property.

The day after Thanksgiving is the traditional start of the Christmas season, although most advertising begins well before.

To hear Gerstl tell it, Laub just wants to brighten the street for the holidays but is a victim of a city political vendetta.

THE CITY council, by the way, deplores all of this early crass commercialization of Christmas.

Council members went so far as to ask the cultural commission to postpone its annual holiday sing from Dec. 1 to Dec. 8. That request was turned down.

Laub's lights did not stay lit for long, but the sudden dark was not the result of faulty bulbs or a short circuit.

The police came and confiscated the strings — not just once, but twice.

Gerstl's version is this:

Greg D'Ambrosio, city administrative services director, contacted Laub's employees and expressed dissatisfaction with the lights because the switch was turned on too early.

Gerstl quoted D'Ambrosio as saying the city bans such lights but "looks the other way at Christmas time."

So the lights were turned off until Dec. 1, when the plug was put back in only to be taken back out again by police.

Then Gerstl and City Atty. Don Freeman met, and a compromise supposedly was reached.

The compromise basically stated that Laub's group would get the lights back but not plug them in until Dec. 8, the day after the official city holiday tree is lit.

But then Laub, who is now in Hawaii, got angry because the police simply dropped off the lights without putting them back in the trees.

So Laub turned the Christmas lights on again.

This brought a repeat visit from the police, who once again confiscated the lights.

"The lights are now in the possession of the city of Carmel," Gerstl said.

And the city has sent Laub a citation for violating safety codes.

Gerstl charges that Laub has under consideration a harassment lawsuit against the city because of the past legal run-ins he has had over in-lieu parking fees, mini-marts and other business controls.

Gerstl also called the city action "selective enforcement" and argued that Laub has installed the lights for the past three years with no problems.

Christmas in Carmel

THE CHRISTMAS spirit pervaded downtown Carmel the evening of Dec. 6 as the city celebrated its annual tree lighting with carols and a visit from jolly Saint Nick, who read 'Twas the Night Before Christmas. The Frohman Foundation sent a chorus to sing the carols and the Carmel Youth Center provided the "Bing Mobile" to pass out free hot apple cider and cookies. Above, Santa Claus joined in with a hearty rendition of O

Come all Ye Faithful with the assistance of (from left) Anne Saunders, musical director of the Frohman Foundation; and Mayor Charlotte Townsend. Below, the mayor busied Santa as she partook of holiday cheer — and there wasn't even any mistletoe around. While the city tree lights blink merrily there are no Christmas lights on two other city trees because of a city feud with businessman Paul Laub. (Michael Gardner photos.)

The city version is that the lights could pose a safety threat because of the low extension cords. The city wanted a "hold harmless" agreement so it couldn't be sued in case of accident.

Laub also was asked to get a use permit for an encroachment in the public way.

WHEN LAUB did not comply, the police came and hauled away the lights.

Freeman then sought a compromise where Laub could have his lights back if he promised not to turn them on until Dec. 8.

But Laub refused to comply and lit the lights a week earlier than agreed. So back came the police, the city charges.

If Laub had lived up to his end of the agreement, there wouldn't have been any problems and the story would have had a happy ending, the city claims.

D'Ambrosio also added that several other shops were involved in similar problems, and the merchants chose to remove the lights.

Councilman David Maradei, who has battled Laub in the past on business-related issues, does not extend any peace offerings this holiday season.

"Let's face facts. Paul Laub is seeking self-serving publicity because those things make more money for him," Councilman Maradei said.

"He wants to rub it in the city's face. He does not care about this community, he does not live in this community and he does not contribute to this community," Maradei said.

Save Huckleberry

Dear Editor:

The Presidio of Monterey controls a huge part of Monterey Peninsula and they are starting to build a $300-million project next to Huckleberry Hill.

This area of the Presidio is undeveloped and most of it is a beautiful Monterey Pine tree forest with huckleberry shrubs everywhere. There are other Huckleberry Hills around Monterey; this one happens to be the very top of our Monterey Peninsula.

The developers in the Army have agreed to save this Huckleberry Hill only on a temporary basis. Which means that in 10 or 15 years, they plan on building another $300-million hotel for their brass.

We need some permanent agreements to save this Huckleberry Hill for our community before they start tearing out every last tree on Monterey Peninsula. The cities of Monterey Peninsula should have some control over what happens in the Presidio, and I don't mean a passive control.

Traffic preview

Dear Editor:

On Thanksgiving weekend, the near-gridlock traffic throughout the peninsula signaled serious problems ahead.

Traffic capacity is the ultimate limitation on future development on the peninsula. Money will buy more sewage treatment plants and another dam to increase our water supply. Money, however, will not move the Pacific Ocean, the Presidio, or the Santa Lucia Mountains.

Insurmountable geographic facts limit our highway system. There can be only one Lighthouse curve connecting old and New Monterey. Only one Holman Highway to Pacific Grove. Only one Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road. When traffic on these key arteries reaches capacity, there is no escape through construction of alternative routes. We are stuck. Permanently. Geography will not compromise.

Better planning is essential. We must determine the maximum traffic capacities for our key arteries. Given the geographic facts of life, what is the maximum traffic the peninsula can accommodate? Then, we must consider alternatives for living within these implacable limits, including implications for the tourist industry.

Tourists come to visit the whole peninsula, not one city. The aquarium increases traffic to Big Sur. Visitors to Spanish Bay will patronize Carmel restaurants. Planning for tourism must be peninsula-wide.

Unfortunately, there is now no organization for peninsula-wide planning. The city mayors should meet with the new Fourth and Fifth District supervisors to formulate a joint powers agreement or other institutional arrangement to prepare the needed plans. If we learn the lessons of Thanksgiving weekend, we may yet have something to be thankful for.

Artificial comet

Dear Editor:

Serious concern is essential immediately to that of a Christmas morning orbiting of a barium comet to intercede with solar wind and the earth's magnetic field, by U.S., British and West German scientists.

An Associated Press report has just apprised Americans of this planned action!

The comparison to the Star of Bethlehem is execrable and the spokesman for the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory going on to joke about the scientists as the Three Wise Men is diabolical and insidious. No thought given to the voting rights of at least the people of this republic or to their representatives.

I remind the scientists that greedy curiosity destroyed the goose that laid the golden egg.

The $78-million experiment, "without immediate practical applications," should be diverted to the starving. A cry in the wilderness? — better so than lost souls and unguided scientists crying in a wilderness.

Let's incorporate

Dear Editor:

I have had the privilege of living in this area of Carmel since the late 1940s. I love it and feel very protective.

Like it or not, progress is inevitable. However, the one thing through the years that has contributed to some of the more unfavorable developments and hampered the more compatible proposals has been the ill-advised attitudes of some of the city councils of the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Their continual use of the "sphere of influence" particularly has alienated the Monterey County Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors, contributing to the approval of projects that otherwise could have been orderly and well planned.

There is one effective way to correct this, and that is to incorporate the unincorporated area of Carmel as Carmel, California 93922. Why should the dog be wagged by the tail?

Let's become Carmel, California, and manage our future.

'One-sided opinion'

Dear Editor:

Mike Meheen's unofficial written version of the minutes taken at the Carmel Youth Center Board of Directors meeting, and provided to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, concerning the director of the Carmel Youth Center was a one-sided opinion.

The one person, quoted by the Pine Cone/Outlook, in full agreement with the Meheen opinion was a board member whose spouse was one of the applicants for the post of Carmel Youth Center director who lost out to Philip Cherry.

Meheen's complaints include:

- Alleged unauthorized hirings. Philip's sister, Mary Jane Cherry, has been filling in at the Youth Center for many years. Philip's explanation for hiring his sister on a quick basis to watch the center when he must leave to deliver a trailer sounds reasonable enough.

- Resignations kept secret from some directors. Cherry can't be blamed if some members didn't know about the resignation of Teresa Tersol. Didn't she submit her resignation to them?

- Two doors locked during the board meeting. Why didn't Meheen ask Cherry why the doors were locked? He would have received the same answer as the Pine Cone/Outlook reporter who questioned.

One door went to his studio apartment. Keeping that door locked seems reasonable. The other door might have accidentally been locked by a board member entering, causing criticism of Philip. Was it an exaggeration that board members were locked out "for a period of time?"

Or, maybe, just as long as it took audience member Ken White to get up from his chair and walk to the door. Phil claims he was intent on doing the same as White, but was beaten to it.

Meheen also questions Philip's courtesy toward women present. If Meheen "sat firmly on his haunches and watched women

The last-minute rush in county zoning

SUPERVISOR-elect Karin Strasser Kauffman of Carmel Valley hit the nail on the head when she observed that county officials seem to be in great haste to get development plans and permissive zoning in place before two new supervisors are seated Jan. 8.

Speaking before the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, Mrs. Strasser Kauffman observed: "The county is in an incredible rush to finish land use plans, to get decisions before the next board is seated."

As offensive as that strategy may be to citizens who are conscious of the need for greater sensitivity in land use decisions — which includes the majority of voters in the Fifth and Fourth Districts — it is nevertheless a fact of political life. Items:

- Final subdivision map allowing 132 units in the last phase of development at the 500-unit Carmel Valley Ranch is to go before supervisors Dec. 18.

- Supervisors are to convene a special meeting Dec. 17 to consider zoning plans to allow a high-density, 36-unit Mahroom condominium project in the High Meadow area near Carmel, as well as a 36-unit condominium project near Point Lobos.

- Supervisors rushed through land use approvals for the proposed 270-unit Spanish Bay condominium, hotel and golf course project, with the result that a citizen referendum may be pressed to halt the project. The project was to go before the Coastal Commission Dec. 12.

- Outgoing Fifth District Supervisor William Peters proposed amendment of the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program to allow development of two hotels, a convention center and a pair of restaurants at Point Lobos Ranch, across Highway 1 from the state reserve. Peters later withdrew his proposal when public opposition became evident.

members of the board of directors haul chairs for themselves, without the slightest effort of concern or willingness to help," as a board member his conduct affects the Youth Center and reflects upon the Youth Center.

Concerned over COMSAT

Dear Editor:

The Coupes' letter asked why there is bad publicity about COMSAT. Many questions are being asked about impacts the proposed expansion would bring. The questions concern such things as devaluation of neighboring properties, traffic hazards, a tremendous visual impact created by additional giant antennas, massive building addition, increased night lighting and more noise from generators — all in a serene, natural setting, an area zoned agricultural-residential.

More important in the minds of many is the potential health danger to those living in Cachagua and the entire peninsula. I have reviewed the draft environmental impact

- Big Sur resident Francis Jeffrey filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court to block development of the proposed El Sur Ranch project in Big Sur. The lawsuit attacks the development contract between the developer and the county as "friendly facism."

- Supervisors adopted 39 "findings" in an effort to win approval of the still-suspended Carmel Valley Master Plan — after the city of Carmel renewed its legal challenge to adequacy of environmental safeguards in the plan. Superior Court Judge Richard Silver rebuked the county maneuver: "At times I think the county acts with such cavaliness that the law means nothing to them."

When Supervisors-elect Strasser Kauffman and Sam Karas take office, the chemistry of the board of supervisors will undergo a change and sitting supervisors are aware of that. In some instances, hasty land use decisions that have been jammed through the political process may be subject to later — and more objective — review by supervisors.

And there is a possibility that, where no developers have acquired vested rights to their projects under the favorable zoning, those plans may be scaled down to reflect more responsible use of the land and greater awareness of environmental factors.

In a way, it's a kind of back-handed compliment to the two new supervisors that some members of the current board are trying to squeeze every bit of pro-development land use zoning possible out of the system before the new regime takes office.

But it's a compliment that pleases neither the supervisors-elect nor citizens who expressed in the November election a desire for different values on the board of supervisors.

report on this project which states that known carcinogens (PCBs) are stored at this facility in the watershed supplying water to the entire Monterey Peninsula.

In addition, it is known that microwave radiation such as that transmitted by COMSAT has adverse effects on humans. Not enough is known about microwaves to assert that there is no danger to those living nearby. By increasing the number of antennas, this hazardous radiation will increase radically from its present level.

We who live in Monterey County are proud of its beauty and enjoy a healthy environment in which to live and raise our children. How can this type of concern be viewed as "bad publicity?"

COMSAT, which has two more facilities on the West Coast, is a private company in competition with other communications companies and its representatives have said it is for economic reasons they want to expand this facility. Who pays for COMSAT's financial savings?

Lawsuit seeks to limit El Sur Ranch

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A LAWSUIT has been filed in Monterey County Superior Court that seeks to sharply reduce the size of the proposed El Sur Ranch project in Big Sur.

The suit was filed Dec. 6 by Carmel Valley attorney Alexander Henson on behalf of Big Sur resident Francis Jeffrey.

Supervisors are expected to grant permissive zoning for the development Dec. 17 as part of their review of the Big Sur Land Use Plan. The project still would have to be approved by the Coastal Commission.

"I'm mad. I just think the whole thing is outrageous. It's a citizen's duty to do something about it," Jeffrey told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Dec. 7.

"I think the project is way too big. I'd like to see it reduced in size," continued Jeffrey, who has lived near Pfeiffer Beach for two years and is a information systems consultant based in Sausalito.

El Sur Ranch attorney George Brehmer said he could not comment until he reviews the lawsuit.

The Big Sur Local Coastal Program now before supervisors would allow owner Jim Hill to build up to 100 motel units, a 200-seat restaurant and 98 homes on the approximately 7,000 acre ranch that stretches on both sides of Highway 1 between Molera State Park and Bixby Bridge.

In return, Hill has agreed to sell more than 1,000 acres to the Save the Redwoods League and state Coastal Conservancy. The large beach just north of the navy station at Point Sur also would be opened to the public.

Supervisors already have signed a development agreement with Hill that would permit the development. However, the motel project could not be more than 60 units at one site, although Hill could develop two hotels that total 100 rooms — such as 60 and 40, or 50 and 50.

Jeffrey especially is concerned about the size of the hotel. He claims other neighborhood motels cannot be larger than 30 units.

"I'd like to see that everything is in strict conformance with what everyone else is allowed," Jeffrey said in response to the 30-room limit imposed on other property owners.

Jeffrey added that he also wants the court to require a local approval process so the project would have to obtain approval from Big Sur residents and not just supervisors.

IN A press release issued after the lawsuit was filed, Jeffrey further detailed his complaints against the county.

In his statement, Jeffrey charged supervisors with "failure to adequately safeguard the environment; failure to follow existing laws, procedures and sound planning principles; and disregard for the concerns of local residents and communities."

"The El Sur Ranch project is of unprecedented size and environmental impact for Big Sur and it would cause drastic and permanent damage to the Big Sur environment and the local community," he claims.

"The plan was approved by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors in the novel form of a development agreement — a kind

AN EL SUR Ranch cowboy tended herd on the spread in Big Sur. Ranch owner Jim Hill wants to build a hotel, restaurant and homes on the 7,000-acre spread and keep the cattle ranch in operation. But a lawsuit aimed at limiting the development has been filed in Monterey County Superior Court.

of contract between the county, ranch owners and several other parties which guarantees development at the maximum stated levels."

Jeffrey calls the project "totally irresponsible and destructive in a fragile environment."

The project is opposed by most Big Sur residents and would be "viewed here as an alien intrusion which opens the doors to large-scale corporate-style resort development," he said.

In his press release, Jeffrey cited 13 reasons why the courts should overturn the development agreement and force a new, smaller plan. He also took the opportunity to blast supervisors for "irresponsible" planning and setting "dangerous" precedents.

Some of his charges are:
• "The development agreement approach is unconstitutional and erodes the American tradition of government, moving us one step closer to friendly facism — with government and corporations in collusion.

• "The environmental impact report for the El Sur resort project deliberately and greatly understates the impact on the environment, the local community and neighboring towns.

• "El Sur Ranch has been granted extraordinary privileged development approvals and exemption from restrictions simultaneously imposed on other property owners in the Big Sur land use planning area.

• "County government has been unresponsive to the local people's concerns about the neighborhoods in which they live and has given greater representation to outside special interest groups and privileged individuals and corporations, thus defeating the principles of local government and democratic self determination.

• "The county has acted with prejudice, with pre-determination and arbitrary and favoritistic findings. And — in collusion with other agencies, organizations, individuals and corporations — has conducted public business out of public view."

JEFFREY ALSO accused the county of setting "dangerous" precedents by adoption of the development agreement.

He charged that the trade for development rights in return for selling open space to the county merely means that an "exemption from sound planning and equitable treatment under law can be bought for the equivalent of cash."

Jeffrey's statement also charges that environmentally-minded citizens no longer can expect fair hearings before the county.

"Unfortunately, the court has become the unbiased public agency and forum available to the public for deliberation of planning questions in Monterey County, and for exercise in restraint of overdevelopment by assuring equitable planning subject to current law," Jeffrey wrote.

Henson, Jeffrey's attorney, said he plans to argue four key points before the court.

"We contend that first of all that development agreements are unconstitutional," Henson explained. "The board is attempting to take away its own police power and contract it to the owners of El Sur Ranch."

The "findings of fact" in the environmental impact report are inadequate because "no findings are included to mitigate the adverse environmental affects," Henson said.

And the EIR is "legally inadequate" because it "fails to include a discussion of impacts of employee housing."

Henson claimed there will be three employees for every motel room, based on the numbers provided by Ventana resort.

And Henson plans to challenge the development agreement on the grounds that it is "not consistent with the Monterey County General Plan."

"I'm mad. I just think the whole thing is outrageous. It's a citizen's duty to do something about it," Jeffrey said.

The county general plan is not legally adequate because it does not have a circulation element, Henson asserted.

Since the general plan is not adequate, the development agreement cannot be consistent with the general plan, he said.

No hearing date has been set on the lawsuit.

Supervisors to discuss changes to Big Sur plan

TWO MAJOR zoning plans that include policies on local developments are to be discussed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors during a special session Monday, Dec. 17 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Supervisors have scheduled a 9:45 a.m. review of the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan, which includes permissive zoning for Rancho San Carlos and the Mahroom subdivision.

Discussion of Coastal Commission-suggested modifications to the Big Sur Local Coastal Program has been scheduled for 11 a.m.

But meanwhile Big Sur resident Francis Jeffrey has filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court intended to stop the project. His attorney is Alexander Henson of Carmel Valley.

El Sur Ranch has no objections to the modifications proposed by the Coastal Commission, according to developer attorney George Brehmer.

The Coastal Commission has suggested several modifications that would affect the El Sur Ranch development.

The board of supervisors and El Sur Ranch already have entered into a development agreement that complies with those major changes, Brehmer said.

El Sur Ranch at first wanted a 100-unit hotel and restaurant, and a 100-seat restaurant near the mouth of the Little Sur River.

Up to 98 residences would be constructed on the more than 7,000 acre ranch that stretches on both sides of Highway 1 between Molera State Park and Bixby Bridge.

But the Coastal Commission has suggested language in the land use program that would eliminate the "Little Sur area" restaurant.

El Sur Ranch still can build an approximately 200-seat restaurant as part of the hotel development.

The Coastal Commission also recommends that the land use program language be changed to allow only up to 60 hotel units in one project on El Sur Ranch.

But since the land use program would allow El Sur Ranch up to 100 units, developers probably will just build two smaller hotels rather than the now-planned single large complex, Brehmer said.

The modifications also require that the smaller hotel complexes be at least 400 feet apart.

Although the language changes are listed as proposed modifications, the Coastal Commission does have final authority over provisions in land use programs.

THE GREATER Monterey Peninsula Area Plan also has two permissive zoning policies that would have an effect on Carmel-area projects.

The first is zoning to allow up to 2,000 units on Rancho San Carlos, an approximately 20,000-acre spread in the hills south of Carmel Valley Road.

The Oppenheimer family — before development of the area plan — wanted a 3,800-unit self-sustaining community in the bowl area off Robinson Carmel Valley Road.

And if newly-elected Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who doesn't take office until January, had her way the development would get permissive zoning for only 500 units.

Another density issue in the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan concerns the Mahroom condominium project in the High Meadow area east of Highway 1 and south of Outlook Drive.

Several homeowner organizations have protested zoning that would allow 36 units on the 2.4 acre site.

They claim the project is too dense and will create traffic, sewage capacity and water supply problems.

The developers argue that supervisors approved 236 units in the High Meadow area. The 36 Mahroom condominiums would bring the total to 234.

They also claim that 48.9 acres already have been dedicated as open space.

Supervisors have closed the public hearing on both issues — the LCP and area plan — and will not accept further public testimony.

Space invaders?

A STRANGE-looking contraption appears and disappears each rainy day on Scenic Road near 11th Avenue. Actually, it's an invention of these three city workers (from left) Buzz Cole, Stu Ross and Ron Prieto, who worked together to solve a big drainage problem. Each time it stormed, the leaves would clog the storm drain. The runoff from the small alley between San Antonio Street and Scenic Road then would run across Scenic Road, damaging the street and the beach banks. The tree that forced all of the runoff into one spot could not be removed. The city couldn't simply remove the drain grate because of the danger of someone falling in the hole and getting hurt. And a worker couldn't be stationed there all the time to clear the leaves. But the workers combined their talents to build a portable box with poles that glow at night and has a flashing yellow warning light. A small portion of the grate is removed and the box is inserted. The leaves then fall into the box and the water can still run into the drain pipe that goes from the alley under Scenic Road and out into the ocean. (Michael Gardner photo.)

County public works crews begin construction of retaining wall

Monterey County public works crews will begin construction of a retaining wall on Carmel Valley Road approximately 2.5 miles north of Arroyo Seco Road, to improve traffic safety.

The work is expected to begin Dec. 10 and be completed Jan. 1, 1985. During the first week of construction — Dec. 10 to Dec. 14 — Carmel Valley Road will be subject to closure during the hours of 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m., and 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. After Dec. 14, traffic on Carmel Valley Road will be subject to control by flagmen with possible short delays.

THE CONTINUING teacher contract dispute — that boiled over into the public eye when instructors established instructional picket lines prior to a fall board meeting (above) — has been cited as one reason why three members of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education should be recalled. Trustee Robert Fenton, who is targeted for recall along with new board President Susan Bromfield and Trustee James Yates, dismisses the charges and has challenged the recall committee to a debate. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Fenton suggests debate on recall election bid

By MICHAEL GARDNER

TRUSTEE ROBERT Fenton claims the real issue in the Carmel school recall bid is "who is going to control education" and has challenged recall backers to a debate.

Fenton, who stepped down as president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education Dec. 10, issued the debate challenge in a memo provided to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Fenton, new board President Susan Bromfield and Trustee James Yates are targets of a recall campaign that began after Supt. William Rand announced his resignation Oct. 8.

The key argument in the recall effort is that Fenton and Yates secretly met with Rand to force the superintendent's resignation.

The recall committee also has published several advertisements in local newspapers that outline a variety of charges against Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield. Trustees Doyle Clayton and Pat Condren are not targeted for recall, presumably because they did not vote to accept Rand's resignation.

Trustee challenges group to debate recall issues

The recall committee has lodged numerous charges against the three trustees, including: "they have inappropriately assumed responsibilities of administration, they have neglected their roles as educational policy makers, (and) they acted as individuals, not as a deliberative body."

"What we don't need is a recall. The Pine Cone ad is headlined with: 'Help end the uncertainty in Carmel schools.' Well, a recall will not do this," Fenton wrote in his prepared three-page statement.

"A willingness to address the issues with objectivity will. This requires a working knowledge of the facts," he stated.

"To that end I hereby challenge Richard Stott of the recall committee to a public debate and suggest that it be moderated by a member of the California School Boards Association from Sacramento, or a similar neutral faction.

"Let's find out what's going on so that the public can reach an informed conclusion."

Stott, who serves as spokesman for the recall committee, told this newspaper that he could not respond to the challenge until after he confers with the group.

The committee has a rule that no members speak publicly on the recall until they obtain the advice of the entire membership.

"Our committee does not make public statements without committee approval. I'm not the head of the committee. I have no authority," Stott said.

In his statement, Fenton wrote: "The desperation advertisement by the Carmel Unified School District Recall Committee in the Dec. 6 edition of the Pine Cone is so asinine that I feel compelled to respond. This attempt to dupe the public must be exposed."

FENTON BELIEVES the ad does not have the "guts" to state the real problem in the district, "which is control."

"Whatever the window dressing, the major question before the public is who is going to control education," Fenton stated.

"Ideologically there has been a split between those individuals who want to make changes and those who would keep things as they are.

"Obviously, the three trustees, Yates, Mrs. Bromfield and Fenton, are making changes and thinking on a long-range basis.

"This is perceived as a threat, in my opinion, by those persons who like things to run as they have and believe what is now happening is good enough for Carmel schools."

The advertisement also blamed Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield for the bitter teacher contract dispute. The charge is "ludicrous," Fenton wrote.

"This is the point where three of the five board members are screened out for denunciation and accused of all the ills of the district, while the two remaining members are dropped from discussion.

"Then the ad indulges in defamatory drivel by making ad hoc conclusions about trustees' personalities," he countered.

Fenton said he does not understand why the three members have been singled out and accused of not solving the teacher contract crisis. And he asserted teachers have a responsibility to end the stalemate.

"As most people know, negotiating is a two way street, shared equally by the teachers' union," Fenton wrote.

The real solution, Fenton claimed, is to plan for the future and adopt innovative budget programs.

"It is my personal belief that new approaches to running public schools here and elsewhere are imperative. We are in a position where the present format and process will soon lead to insolvency."

The district currently allocates 85 percent of its entire budget to salaries and a "large number" of other expenditures are restricted monies that could not be redistributed for pay raises, Fenton said.

An often-mentioned source of pay raise money would be for the district to eliminate the new Carmel Middle School seven-period day program. The $100,000 savings would give the staff an approximately 2 percent salary hike.

Trustee Fenton calls for debate on recall move

BUT FENTON dismissed that proposal as a "quick fix."

"If the cost of that period is instead diverted to salary increases, there will be no seventh period in the future and to obtain more money something else will have to be cut until there is nothing left," he stated.

Instead of these "reactive fixes" the current board seeks "permanent solutions," he added.

Fenton reiterated his past claims that the board would like to grant a higher pay raise for its staff.

"We recognize the inequities of wages and it is high on the list of priorities. I am confident there are concerned teachers and other citizens in our community who can aid with the solutions and I am hoping they will come forward. We need their help," Fenton stated.

The recall committee often cites a 1984 consultant's report that both criticizes and praises the board. The consultants represented the California School Boards Association and the Association of California School Administrators.

But Fenton also uses that report to defend his record.

"In this report the trustees are referred to collectively only as 'the board' and not as individuals," Fenton wrote.

"The 1984 report contains 12 suggestions for possible change and 17 supportive impressions. You cannot find any of the latter in the recall ad.

"For instance, impression number one: 'new board has the potential for being an excellent board. It is student-centered, seeks academic improvement, seeks to be well-informed and is focusing on where the district wants to go.'

"Impression number two is: 'board is willing to face difficult or unpopular decisions and it is seeking closure on some long standing and much discussed issues'," Fenton continued.

He also questioned why only three trustees face a recall movement when the consultants' report does not single out individual board members in its critical comments.

The recall committee has charged Fenton, Yates and Bromfield with "inappropriately" assuming the tasks of administrators on several occasions, including during the high school renovation project and district attempts to sell surplus properties.

IN HIS response Fenton admits to making a couple of decisions but explains each circumstance.

"What about high school renovation? Now here's a heinous crime — selecting a color for the cafeteria chairs," he wrote.

"This was to be the task of a cafeteria committee. However I was called to the central office and asked to make a determination on colors of these new chairs," Fenton explained.

"I made the decision — all red. Maybe the recall committee felt that yellow or some other selection was better and that I should be recalled from elective office for my choice.

"By the way, why are other trustees (Mrs. Bromfield and Yates) being accused when it was solely my action?"

Fenton also explained how he got involved in the disposition of surplus property. He signed some real estate-related papers when that allegedly is the responsibility of the school administration.

"Again I was called to the central office and told that there was a potential buyer for a parcel of school land. The superintendent happened to be on two weeks vacation and no one was present who would sign the document.

"I talked to the realtor, Mr. Clayton, who was on the board real estate committee and Mr. Yates," Fenton recalled.

Fenton also responded to the "secret meeting" charges between himself and Rand.

He referred to his meetings with Rand as an "exchange of information" and said no action took place.

"Further, to respond to comments in the ad regarding Mr. Rand's evaluation, he was evaluated on specific guidelines. This format was similar to those used by past boards. How can the recall committee refute this? Were they present during the evaluation?"

"The ad then implies that lack of good personnel procedures excluded Mrs. Condren and Mr. Clayton from crucial meetings with Mr. Rand. Now just what meetings were they excluded from that other members were not?"

"I have met with the superintendent and other single board members on many occasions. No one trustees has been excluded more than another, unless by their own choice.

BY THE way, Mrs. Condren and Mr.

Clayton met with Mr. Rand on Aug. 6 (the date of the superintendent's evaluation). Why doesn't the recall committee ask who felt excluded from that meeting?"

Fenton charges that the ad claiming the board has "no written goals" is misleading.

"In fairness to the superintendent, the board retained the previously set goals for the remainder of the 1983-84 school year rather than swap horses in mid-stream," Fenton wrote.

"Would the recall committee have reset the goals in mid-year? Since the ad accuses 'the board' once again as a collective group, why have only three of those members been selected for ridicule?"

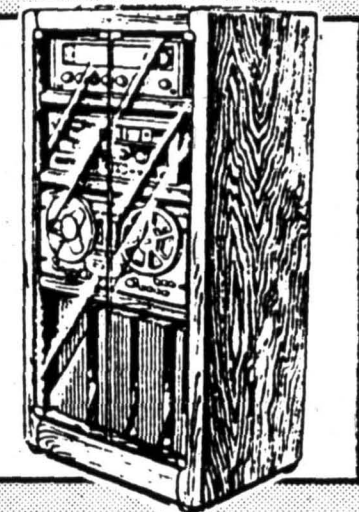

Fenton, Mrs. Bromfield and Mrs. Condren were elected in November 1983. Yates was appointed in January. He replaced The Rev. Joan Cathery, who resigned. Clayton is a five-year veteran on the board.

County ready to pull plug on music at Mission Ranch

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors is ready to pull the plug on loud public concerts in the barn at Mission Ranch Resort.

Planning staff is to present supervisors with a list of findings to control use of the barn when the board meets Tuesday, Dec. 18 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Supervisors at their Dec. 4 session tentatively agreed to allow four public concerts and up to 144 private parties per year at the barn.

However, supervisors reached a consensus that no amplification will be allowed for the public concerts, a move to satisfy longtime complaints by Mission Ranch area residents that the rock concerts are too loud.

Amplification will be permitted at the private parties celebrated at the barn.

Supervisors directed staff to prepare the findings to support approval of their action and to present those documents next Tuesday.

Supervisors got into the fray Dec. 4 after area resident Lisa Work appealed to the board a decision by the county planning commission to grant the resort "conforming" status.

Ms. Work, through attorney Fred Farr, successfully argued that there were not enough conditions attached to the use permit for conforming status to control future noisy rock concerts at the barn.

The barn has long been a source of controversy in the Mission Ranch neighborhood, southwest of Carmel Mission and just outside the Carmel city limits.

Area residents had lodged a continual battle with Mission Ranch Resort over loud rock concerts that they say created noise, parking and congestion problems in the neighborhood.

Resort spokesman Doug Tuck previously has said that it is not the intention of the owners to present large numbers of rock concerts.

He said recent use of the barn has been limited to private parties, such as wedding receptions, and a few public concerts that feature musicians like Jake Stock and his Abalone Stompers.

CV Ranch seeks county approval for 132 units

A TENTATIVE subdivision map for the final residential phase of development at Carmel Valley Ranch is to be presented to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Dec. 18.

Supervisors have scheduled the public hearing for 11 a.m. in the belief that the planning commission will complete its study Dec. 12. Supervisors will meet in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Landmark Land Development Co., which is the parent company for Carmel Valley Ranch, has plans for 132 units on 75 acres in the hills overlooking the ranch off Carmel Valley Road about six miles east of Highway 1.

In a Dec. 6 interview, Landmark Land Co. Vice President for Design and Planning D. Kaye Chandler explained the project and its development schedule.

"This is some of the most developable property on the ranch," Chandler said in reference to the site off golf course fairways 11 and 12.

"This is an opportunity to develop something that will fit into the hillside conditions very well and also pretty well be screened from public view."

The company has plans to develop several two-story, two- and three-bedroom models. The project will be a combination of detached homes, duplexes and triplexes, he said.

The two-bedroom units will be 2,560 sq. ft. and the largest three bedroom home is planned at 2,800 sq. ft.

Chandler said he could not offer a precise selling price because the company does not plan to have the units ready for the market for at least two years.

However, he did say he anticipates a $125 to $200 per square foot selling price. That means, the smaller two-bedroom unit would cost at least $320,000 at $125 per square foot.

Access will be provided through a series of roadways off the main entrance on Robinson Canyon Road. Carmel Valley Ranch paid the county about $2 million to build the now-under-construction underpass at the intersection of Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads.

Chandler believes that a key issue supervisors will have to resolve is whether to allow Carmel Valley Ranch to build roadways across three sections of 30 percent slopes.

The three road sections that cut through the 30 percent slopes total less than 450 feet, Chandler said.

Current county policy is not to allow any development on 30 percent slopes.

CHANDLER promised that the roadways "will be concealed by vegetation."

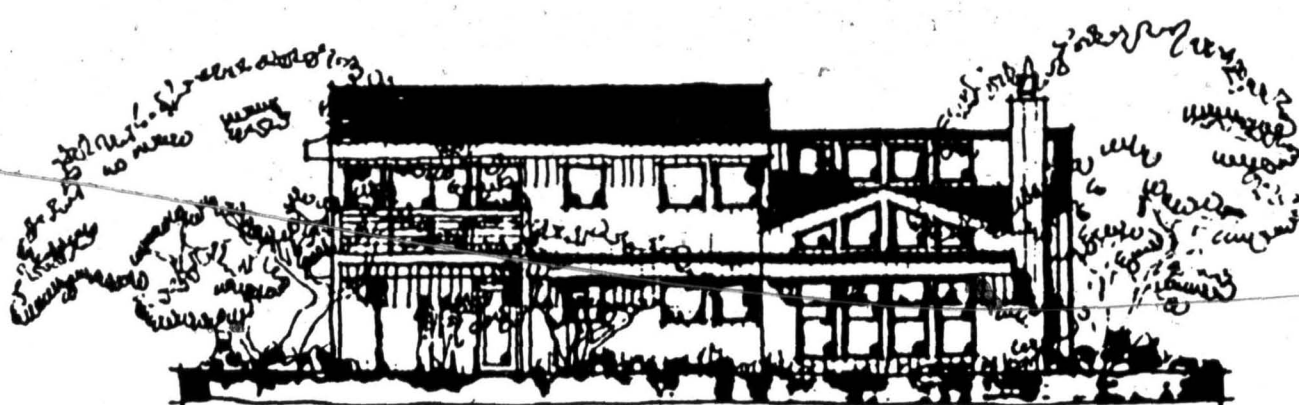

The past three phases at Carmel Valley Ranch have been pushed through the political application process by Landmark Land Development Co. But after permits were granted, the three phases were sold to other companies for actual construction, Chandler explained.

Landmark is "ready to go either way" for phase four. The company will either build the units or sell development rights after all of the permits are obtained, he said.

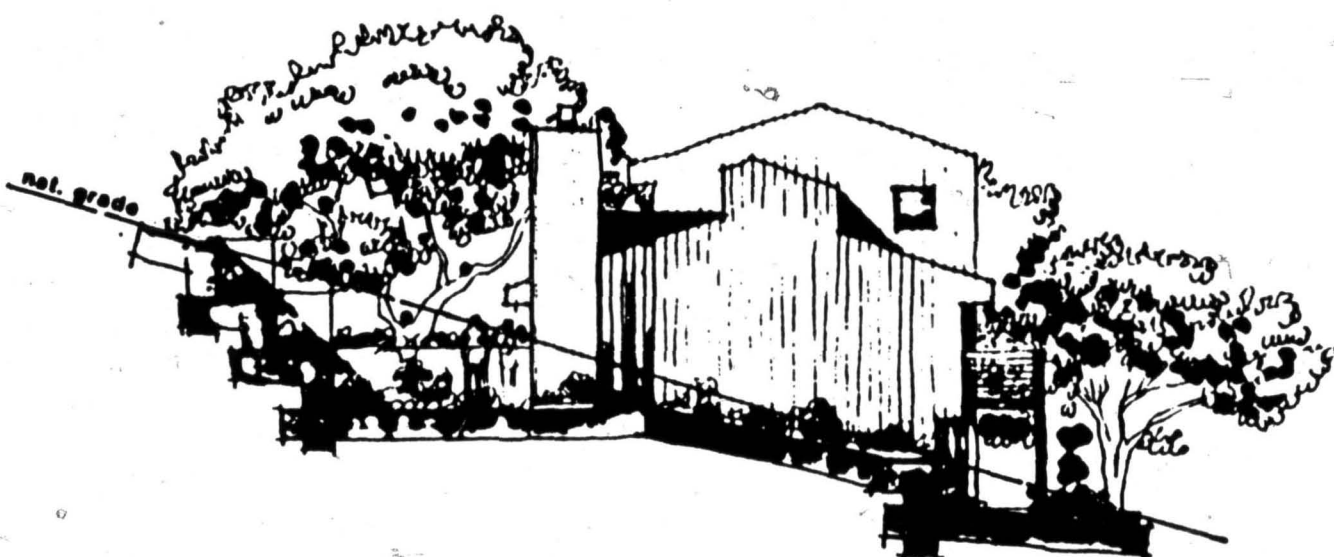

The first phase consisting of 80 units is "100 percent sold," while half of the 60 units in phase two have been purchased.

Carmel Valley riders win honors at state event

VANESSA KLETTKE of Carmel Valley was the show star at the 24th Annual Santa Barbara National Amateur Horse Show Nov. 20-25. She led a group of 19 riders from Rushwood Riding School in Hidden Hills at the largest show this year on the West Coast.

Riding her hunter Kare Fre Victory, Ms. Klettke received the Pacific Coast Hunter Seat Equitation Championship and a Crosby Prix des Nations saddle with fittings after she won both phase one and phase two of the competition. She also won the Barbara Worth Medal, took first in the Junior Equitation Grand Championship age 14-15, and placed first in both the Junior Equitation Stake and the Junior Equitation Class age 14.

Ms. Klettke and her jumper LA, were named Reserve Show Champion Junior Jumper Age 17 and Under after she placed second in both the Junior Jumper Stake and the Junior Jumper Class. She placed fourth in the California Professional Horsemen's Association Medal, took a second in the Junior Hunt Seat Equitation Over Fences class.

Kelly Kurz of Carmel Valley was named Show Champion Children's Jumper age 15 after she won two firsts and two thirds in Children's Jumper Classes and received both Jumper Team sashes. In medal competition, Ms. Kurz and her horse Suspended Animation placed fourth in the Barbara Worth competition and 10th in the American Horse Show Association Medal event.

She also won a Junior Hunter class age 15-17 and received ribbons in two other Junior Hunter events.

Other Rushwood riders who won awards in the junior and amateur-owner divisions included Dana Bridge of Carmel Valley, Kasey Owen of Pebble Beach, and Janice Burke of Monterey.

Ms. Bridge, riding her horse Curtain Call,

BY VICTORIA ANDREWS

Strasser Kauffman outlines her goals

THE MOOD was as festive as wreaths decorating the Redwood Room at Del Mesa Carmel, where nearly 100 persons gathered to hear Supervisor-elect Karin Strasser Kauffman speak before the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman noted that it was appropriate for her to begin her post-election speech-making with the Dec. 4 meeting of the CVPOA, of which she is a director until Jan. 8 when the new supervisors are installed.

"There is not a day I don't feel the responsibility now," she commented about the interim during which she has scheduled regular meetings—throughout the county departments. "Though I sit in the audience, I drop a few hints as to my preferences...They have to face my staring eyes when they make decisions."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman stressed repeatedly that she values communication from her constituency and will need continued support from the Fifth District population, which she described as a "sophisticated talent pool."

She exhorted the group to stay in contact with her, to keep her informed, and to never assume that she's automatically "on top" of a situation. She said there are far more meetings of importance than she possibly could attend. "To keep me effective, please present yourself for appointment to the many committees and commissions which deal with a whole range of community services. This is the way for me to multiply myself."

Discussing both herself and the electorate, she said, "I know I'm powerful. I received a very large portion of the vote, and that gets the respect and attention of the other county officials."

"I have a demanding population. I will need your help to lobby the other four supervisors. I'll alert you, and I'm counting on you to turn out."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman also discussed some of the problems she sees within the present county workings. "The county is in an incredible rush to finish land use plans, to get decisions before the next board is seated."

"The planning commission is evaluating area plans at the rate of four per day, but any one should take a full day. The haste is frustrating...they're ramming things through." She noted that some of the proposals were seven or eight years in the planning, and said that even at this late date, they deserve considerably more attention.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman further stated: "The incumbent (William Peters) is filling many appointments I would like to make. Cachagua and the eastern end of the Valley are areas I am very concerned about." According to Mrs. Strasser Kauffman, Peters wants to make those appointments by Dec. 12, though she said there is no pressure from local groups to do so. "We do not have to tolerate business as usual!"

She said her first priority as a new supervisor is to return harmony to the board, "to restore dignity and respectful communication by board members. The board members have been trained in bad habits," she added.

"But you don't need to worry," she continued. "I believe in being direct, but the board must get off on a good footing."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman waxed eloquent over the beauty of Carmel Valley, which she described as the heartland of the 723 sq. mi. district. "The land is exceptionally beautiful and needs to be exceptionally carefully tended," she cautioned.

She added, "Our little region can become a model, for we're in the forefront of land use planning. We have a chance with the Carmel Valley Master Plan to be something spectacular."

BAGHDAD WEST? Garage sales, the folks who hold them and those who flock to them, are among the fascinating subjects that cry out for anthropological investigation. I can't remember when I first heard about garage sales, though it certainly wasn't during my first 20 years on the east coast, where even today the practice of selling one's overaccumulations is regarded as improper in some circles — and plain old tawdry in others. I'm not even sure people in Connecticut have junk.

Probably the idea originated in California. The exuberance with which people haggle with each other to acquire something they will want to sell at the end of another week has such a pure spirit of instant gratification and utter non-utility that the practice just has to be rooted in California culture.

I confess to being a minor garage sale junkie. Not that I can't pass them up for weeks at a time, but when I do go, if I cannot find something to lug home, I become rather melancholy. It's like expecting dinner at Fresh Cream and being treated to Jack-in-the-Box.

It is utterly fascinating to watch the "pros" swoop down on the dusty egg cup, salt and pepper shakers, Monopoly sets — which always profess to be intact — and the inevitable old blue insulators. My children have developed a sixth sense about whether and where the pickings are going to be good, and they always seem to be able to make their deals quickly — with an expertise they did not acquire from me. For while I love to poke through the cast-offs of others, I am terrible at striking a deal. I mean a real deal.

When it comes to bargaining, I am a coward of the highest order. Mrs. Gottrocks may have priced her old rusty hoofpick at $2 — well above its worth when new — and I may want that hoofpick passionately. (The fact that I already own two is immaterial.) But do I glare in disdain like the experts and offer her a dime, expecting to settle for a quarter?

No, I become flustered and blurt out something inane, like, "Would you consider taking less?"

"Make me an offer," she waves off-handedly.

"Uh, how about a dollar?" The hoofpick is sold to me before the last syllable is out of my mouth.

My solution to this dread shortcoming is to frequent garage sales only with a friend who understands my faintheartedness and has a sufficient dose of bargaining moxey to induce Mrs. Gottrocks to beg him to take her stuff away.

"Psst," I whisper at him, wiggling my eyebrows at the latest objet de questionable art. He takes a quick look — often quizzical — and sidles over to the seller, noting the price and mentally quartering it.

Usually I become too embarrassed at this point to pay attention, so I have neither learned the skill myself, nor can I tell you how he does it. But because of that friend's intrepid haggling skill, I have a fabulous array of items I don't need much, but enjoy for the thrill of having got them for nearly no monetary outlay.

I have planters from Tijuana which I pretend are Pennsylvania Dutch, and which one day I may try to sell as such. They cost me $1.50, so you might expect to pay maybe $15, $10 perhaps? Oh, well, the world is made of buyers and sellers...

WHILE THIS would ordinarily be an item for the business column, I stole the rights to it because I am so delighted. Though we have some wonderful comestibles for sale on the peninsula, the trek to acquire them requires as many stops as an old telegram. But take note; the Valley palate is growing up.

Wandering into Tancredi and Morgen last week to pick up some of their fabulous pot pourri, I discovered from Sharon Tancredi that she and partner Chris Morgen are planning a change, one that will no doubt inspire carols of delight to resident gourmets.

Sometime soon after Christmas, they will take over the present Wolter's Hacienda Market and convert it into a highly selective grocery store along the order of the Oakville Grocery.

Additionally, they will grow their own herbs, and Sharon said they expect the Wolters' touch will produce fine and very unusual produce for them.

The country antiques that have been their hallmark will continue at the new location, which needs a bit of refurbishing before it bears the charming Valley look.

CARMEL VALLEY PERSPECTIVE

Carmel Valley rider honored

KELLY KURZ of Carmel Valley was named Pacific Coast Horse Show Association Section B Champion age 15-17 at the Dec. 4 annual PCHSA Awards Banquet in Costa Mesa. Kelly and her horse, Suspended Animation, won the coveted award on the basis of total points accumulated in the Junior Hunter B Division at shows during the past year. Kelly, who trains with Michelle Rush at Rushwood Riding School in Hidden Hills, not only won four show championships at statewide events, but edged out her closest competitor by two points.

CVPOA slate of officers to run unopposed for election in 1985

THE FIVE candidates for the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association Board of Directors will run unopposed.

The candidates were announced at a general membership meeting Dec. 5. Ballots are to be mailed to the 1,200 CVPOA members in early January. The new board will take office in early February.

Unopposed candidates for the top positions are: Jerry Foote, president; Gene Erner, vice president; Dede White, corresponding secretary; John Tiernan, treasurer; and Barbara Olsen, recording secretary.

Candidates for the five vacant director positions are: Victoria Andrews, Bill Cusack, Norm Glaser, Don Higgins, Ron Hansen, Howard Judson, Robert Keith, Rod Mills and Richard Rosen.

The Original Balans.

Seating Greetings.

Balans Variable™ makes an ideal Christmas gift. This is the chair that introduced a new concept in seating to the world. It is patented and manufactured only by Westnola.

Our designer's original has a padded seat and two padded knee cushions, but no back. Resting on curved rails of laminated beechwood, it rocks and flexes, allowing motion and variation of body position.

The seat on the Balans slants forward. When sitting on the chair, your knees rest on the cushions. Your body balances itself naturally, tension in the lower back is relieved and the need for a back support is eliminated.

People admire the graceful lines and quality workmanship of the Balans Variable.™ To appreciate its true beauty, however, one must sit on the chair and use it. Balans treats your body so well, it inspires the creativity of your mind.

Water directors seek answers from Cal-Am on poor water quality

By ROBERT MISKIMON

DIRECTORS of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District want some answers on when California-American Water Co. will upgrade aging pipes and provide better water service to consumers.

Several speakers complained of brown, corrosive water which has turned their white clothing yellow and forced them to purchase distilled drinking water at the Monday water agency meeting in Monterey.

Dr. Gary Palma of Monterey, a Carmel orthodontist, said he has tested the pH level of his tap water and found it to be 3.0, which is acidic. His tap water is brown and murky, Palma added.

Virginia Fry, who lives in the same neighborhood as Dr. Palma, told water district directors that tap water tested at Monterey Peninsula College — where she is a biology instructor — has a pH level between 4.5 to 6, which also indicates acidity.

Manuel Real of Monterey and Joseph Monaghan of Pacific Grove added their names to the list of those with water complaints. Tom Updike of the Monterey County Health Department told water directors "it is corrosive water, there is no doubt about it."

Under questioning by water board members, Cal-Am Vice President Larry Foy said the water utility has received many complaints in recent weeks from residents of Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel — where some of the older, unlined water mains are 80 years old.

The problem, Foy explained, is that because of the dry summer Cal-Am was not able to sustain its normal flushing operations designed to remove sediment which caused water to become discolored and "aggressive."

And the state Public Utilities Commission has allowed Cal-Am only about $500,000 this year and $600,000 next year for replacement of aging water mains, Foy explained. This is not enough to keep pace with the requirements of the 479 miles of water mains in the entire Cal-Am system, Foy said.

"We always request more money from the PUC than they allow us," Foy told the board in the meeting at Monterey City Hall.

Carmel hydrologist John Logan told water directors that the only reliable measurements of pH are those done immediately at the tap, since alkalinity or acidity of water can be changed in time.

"I would like some information on the magnitude of the galvanized pipe replacement problem from Cal-Am, and information on the turbidity problem at Forest Lake reservoir," said Director William Peters of Carmel Valley.

The board agreed to request a full, written explanation from Cal-Am of the scope of the problem and an estimate of when the utility expects to remedy it.

TO FACILITATE planning and construction of the proposed dam with 18,000 ac. ft. of storage capacity on the upper Carmel River, directors approved an urgency interim ordinance to increase water connection fees.

The fees, which take effect for all projects which were not in progress as of July 9, will levy a 3 percent charge on all commercial and industrial construction, as well as on all residential building in excess of $50,000.

As a way to promote housing for moderate and low income families, the fees will only be 1.5 percent for the first $50,000 of new residential construction value.

The new connection fees are intended to generate $5.5 million in a "sinking fund" for advance payment of a portion of the estimated $34.5 million dam project.

"Without these charges, a $46 million bond would be required," manager Bruce Buel told the board. "These fees would reduce the bond costs to $38 million and the annual cost to $1 million, and would decrease the total finance charges."

"For every $1 generated by these charges in advance, we will reduce the final charges by $4 to $5," he added.

In effect, the board enacted an ordinance that codified the recommendations of a special citizen finance committee which studied ways to pay for the dam. If the district decides not to go through with the dam project, a mechanism is provided in the ordinance to refund all or a portion of the collected charges.

Under the financing scheme decided by the board, residential user fees would generate 33 percent of the total dam cost; commercial user fees 33.2 percent; connection charges 20.15 percent; and 13.43 percent would come from interest and other sources.

The water board hopes to present the entire dam proposal — complete with financing package — to voters in November of 1986.

FIRE LINES

BY MITCH KASTROS

Keeping Christmas safe

THE CHRISTMAS season is one of our most beloved traditions, but it also creates some of our greatest fire hazards. Knowing these hazards and how to prepare for them can help make for a safe holiday season.

For those who choose to buy a cut Christmas tree from a lot, remember that the tree was probably cut in late October, perhaps sooner. This means that by the time you take this tree home, it has been separated from its root system for longer than a month and has been losing its natural moisture content, which causes drying.

To prevent the tree from drying out too fast, you should cut a couple of inches off the stump end and place the tree in a stand that holds water. Make sure there is plenty of water in the stand at all times. Although the tree will not absorb the water, this method will slow down the drying process by helping to retain the moisture that remains in the tree.

The use of various types of chemical solutions to preserve trees is a misconception, waste of time and completely useless. Any publications that recommend their use for flameproofing and preservation of trees are in error, regardless of the source.

In addition to keeping your cut tree in water, we highly recommend that you treat it with a fire retardant. This will slow down the burning process in the event of a fire. Fire retardant can be purchased at some local paint stores. Buy only fire retardants that have the California State Fire Marshal's seal of approval and ask for the type specifically designed for Christmas trees. A few lots apply fire retardant to their trees, and Fort Ord automatically flameproofs all of its Christmas trees for sale.

Those who choose to cut their own tree should apply the same practices for flameproofing and preserving the tree. Although the tree will probably be fresher than one purchased at a lot, it still needs to be cared for and made fire safe.

Remember, although you may take care to preserve your cut tree by keeping it in water and flameproofing it, the tree is dead and will eventually dry out completely. When this happens depends on when the tree was cut, how fresh it was when it was cut, and how it is cared for.

The effectiveness of the flameproofing on a tree will diminish as the tree gets drier. A fresh, treated tree is virtually flameproof. Sparks and small shortstanding flames will not ignite it. A dry, treated tree will take more spark and flame than usual to ignite it, but it will burn. Of all the cut trees that are available for Christmas, the douglas fir, when thoroughly dry, will burn faster than any other, although they all burn quickly.

The safest "real" Christmas tree to have in your home is a potted, living tree. Just as cut trees do, living trees come in all shapes and sizes and can be enjoyed year-round. Fresh, living trees are flameproof and don't have to be treated to maintain fire resistance. Occasional watering is all that is needed to maintain the moisture content in the tree. The only real precaution that should be taken is to protect your floor or carpet when watering the tree.

An easy and clean way to water your live tree is to place ice cubes on the dirt at the base of the tree. This method of watering eliminates the chance of spilling water onto the floor by allowing the water to slowly soak into the soil and not overflow from the pot or saucer.

No matter what kind of tree you put in your home, always make sure to keep it away from heater vents, floor furnaces and fireplaces.

WHEN YOU get out your decorations for the tree and home, take a few moments to check your Christmas lights. Look at your light strings and make sure there is no exposed wire from inside the cord. Older strings of lights are likely to have some exposed wire from being twisted and bent over the years.

If this is the case, there is a good chance that an electrical short will occur in the cord because the insulation has been broken. Don't put this string of lights on your tree or in the house — discard it.

Follow the recommendations that the manufacturer puts on Christmas light boxes for stringing light sets together. Too many strings of lights off one outlet could create a lot of heat in the cords, break down the insulation and cause a short. This can also overload the circuit. Finally, don't put any lights on aluminum or other metal trees.

If you need to use an extension cord, use a heavy duty, double insulated cord. Christmas lights, floodlights and other electrical decorations draw a lot of power, so a heavy-duty cord is required. It is also a safer cord to use and should be used any time an extension cord is needed. The thin extension cords (lamp cord or zipcord) that are available break down too easily from abuse and electrical currents and therefore are not safe.

Finally, don't use "octopus" plugs (multi-plugs) to create more outlets. This is a very dangerous practice because of potential overload. If it is absolutely necessary for you to temporarily create more outlets, use a heavy duty outlet strip with a switch and circuit breaker that will shut the strip off in case of an overload. This will prevent the circuit in your home from overheating. These outlet strips are available at most hardware stores, department stores and discount outlets.

A large concern of the fire department always has been cut Christmas trees after they have been removed from the house. These trees represent tons of additional fuel that, when improperly disposed of, can create additional fire hazards.

An easy, safe and enjoyable way to dispose of your cut tree in Carmel is at the annual Christmas tree burn on the beach at Scenic and 13th. The event is sponsored by All Saints' Episcopal Church and will be at 5 p.m., Jan. 5, 1985. Call 624-3883 for more information. The local disposal companies have a program for picking up trees free of charge. Call for details.

Don't dispose of your tree by throwing it into a vacant lot or down a canyon. This only provides additional fuel for the upcoming fire season.

The fire department does not recommend that you burn your tree in your fireplace. This is a very dangerous practice due to the rapid spread of the fire and the intense heat generated. Burning your tree in the fireplace can also make you susceptible to a chimney fire, especially if your chimney is not properly cleaned.

The Carmel Fire Department hopes that you will have a happy and fire-safe holiday season. Taking the time to make sure your home is protected from fire hazards will help assure that you do.

Fenton passes the gavel to Bromfield on school board

ROBERT FENTON and Susan Bromfield switched places as officers of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education Dec. 10.

On identical 3-2 votes, Mrs. Bromfield was chosen president and Fenton won appointment as clerk of the board. Before the annual organizational meeting, Fenton was president and Mrs. Bromfield clerk.

Trustee James Yates joined Fenton and Mrs. Bromfield to form the three-member majority that voted the two into office.

Trustees Doyle Clayton and Pat Condren wound up in the minority. Clayton had been nominated by Mrs. Condren as president and later as clerk, but only got support from her.

Mrs. Condren also was nominated by Clayton for the position of clerk. But Fenton had the votes of Mrs. Bromfield and Yates to win the job.

The split voting is indicative of the current divisiveness among board members, which started in August when Mrs. Condren revealed concerns about a meeting between Fenton, Yates and former Supt. William Rand.

Those statements highlighted a feud within the board membership. The split continued with Rand's Oct. 8 resignation and a subsequent recall movement targeted at Mrs. Bromfield, Fenton and Yates.

Yates nominated Mrs. Condren, who some regard as the most soft-spoken and less-talkative board member.

Yates prefaced his nomination with a conciliatory statement: "I'd like to say that I think all of the people up here deserve to be in the position."

"The way I feel now is I feel it's very important that there be continuity," he said before he placed Mrs. Bromfield's name in nomination.

Mrs. Condren responded by nominating Clayton, who she said has a "good degree of stability and background."

Fenton ended any speculation that he may be nominated to serve another one year term by saying: "Even if nominated I would choose not to run again. I found it an experience...and one that other board members should share in."

Mrs. Bromfield was the first name up for a vote. After Yates and Fenton each cast a "yes" and Mrs. Condren opposed, Mrs. Bromfield paused and had a surprised look on her face. She then cast the deciding vote to elect herself as president.

BECAUSE MRS. Bromfield had a three-vote majority, no vote was taken on Clayton's nomination. Clayton had opposed her nomination.

After the vote, Clayton gave Mrs. Bromfield a smile and reassuring pat on the hand.

And when Fenton surrendered his gavel to her immediately, Mrs. Bromfield asked: "Now?"

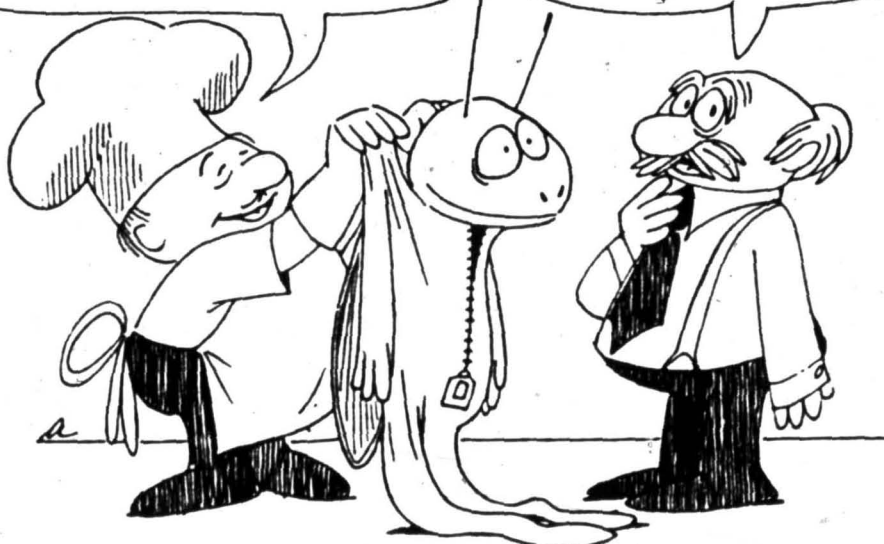

Fenton responded: "Believe me, the gavel's not that heavy."

With Mrs. Bromfield in command, nominations then were accepted for the position of clerk, who runs the meetings in the absence of the president.

Mrs. Condren's nomination as clerk was supported only by herself and Clayton.

BUSINESS BEAT BY NANCY HILLS

Orange Julius, Swensen's may be replaced in Carmel

ORANGE JULIUS and Swensen's Ice Cream Parlor on Ocean Avenue — the only two franchise restaurants in Carmel — are to be replaced next year by a shoe store if the Carmel Planning Commission approves the shoe store use permit application at its Dec. 19 meeting.

Both franchises have been located on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Mission Street for 15 years.

On Dec. 7, the Carmel Land Use Committee reviewed the application of Carmel Foot Stop shoe store owner Michael Montana and attorney Jim Newhouse to replace the two food operations with a ladies' shoe store.

They will recommend passage of the use permit to the planning commission on grounds it will eliminate two businesses with non-conforming use permits on Ocean Avenue.

"Franchise and takeout operations are discouraged, if not prohibited, by the new code," said Brian Roseth, Carmel Assistant Planner.

Gabriele Killian, leasing agent for the building complex owned by Dick Bruhn on the corner of Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets, submitted a letter to the land use committee that outlined plans for a shoe store and informed the committee that Bruhn wished to move the present tenants, the owners of the Orange Julius and Swensen's, into another part of the building.

"The existing tenants have agreed to give up their franchises and eliminate takeout food if we allow them to be tenants," Ms. Killian's letter said.

The committee was able to give its recommendation on the shoe store permit but could not make any recommendation on the move of the other two businesses.

"When the application (for the shoe store) first came in, the land use committee was not aware of the plans to relocate the other businesses. This has been explained to them and they understand it more now," Roseth said. "The land use committee, however, can only act on an application in front of them, and there was no application from the Orange Julius or Swensen's tenants."

The applications for the move have been held up due to complications with the leases to Orange Julius and Swensen's.

Steven Croswell, who owns the Orange Julius with his wife Susan, said he hopes to get his application for a new food business on the January calendar of the planning commission. His franchise agreement terminates Oct. 1, 1985 but the lease — which technically is held by the Orange Julius Corp. — is up May 1, 1985.

Croswell will ask Orange Julius to release him from his franchise commitments early so the lease and the franchise terminate at the same time. If Orange Julius will not allow him to leave the franchise early or does not negotiate an extension on the lease, Croswell could be in the position of having to meet his franchise obligations from May 1 to Oct. 1 even if the Orange Julius restaurant no longer exists. Ms. Killian said she and Bruhn were attempting to make arrangements so the change "won't hurt anyone."

"We are certainly trying to help them in every way we can," she said.

Croswell said he never wanted a franchise-type business, but it was what was available when he moved here in 1970.

"We wanted to live here, and the manager's job at the Orange Julius opened up. After nine months the owners wanted to sell, so we borrowed the money to purchase it. We wanted to own our own restaurant but never dreamed of it being a franchise," Croswell said. "We added more to the menu — homemade soups, salads, pies, and cakes — but the Orange Julius people said we couldn't do that. They want all the franchises to be the same."

"We have been looking forward to the day the franchise ends as long as we can get another business. This is the only business we own. We are trying to work with the city and Mr. Bruhn to get another restaurant, and hopefully it can be done without too many hassles and we can keep our use permit (for a food operation). We are both really excited and nervous."

Mary Larson, the owner of Swensen's, said she would not comment on the change yet.

Roseth said there were many aspects other than the takeout nature of the businesses to consider before the planning commission could make a decision on the move to another location.

"There are the health department permits for cooked food, sewage, the impact on the total water use at the site, and if they want outdoor seating. We have to see the plans," Roseth said.

LILLI OF CARMEL TO CLOSE

Carmel fashion designer Lilli Smith has decided it is time to retire and close the doors on her dress shop, Lilli of Carmel, which has been on the corner of Monte Verde Street and Seventh Avenue for the past 20 years. Mrs. Smith plans to close the shop by the end of January 1985.

The shop not only retails Mrs. Smith's own designs and some personally selected ready-made wear, but houses a workshop where all of Mrs. Smith's designs are sewn and turned into reality.

"I design clothes especially for special people and special occasions," Mrs. Smith said. "We make all our clothes in a workshop here."

"Her clientele includes people from as far away as London, Paris, and Washington, D.C. She designed an outfit for Nancy Reagan when Ronald Reagan was governor of California."

"My specialty is handwoven ribbons and ribbon confections," Mrs. Smith said. These consist of ribbons that are woven together either completely to create a solid colorful fabric or woven only at the top of the skirt or dress so the ribbons fall freely down over a skirt or dress worn underneath. The effect is much like a maypole, which is exactly where Mrs. Smith got the idea for the designs.

"The idea started about 15 years ago," Mrs. Smith said. "My kids went to Woods School, and I originally thought about how kids mess up the ribbon in the maypole dance. It evolved from there."

"I also introduced patchwork and mosaic in fashion. The latest things we have are knit fabrics, where the fabric itself is knitted, and jackets with coordinating dresses."

Mrs. Smith first became interested in fashion design through her work in the theater.

"I liked things dramatic and costumey and became interested in costume design at Boston Drama School," she said. "After college, I started to work for Lanz — an Austrian clothes designer and manufacturer who introduced the dirndl in America."

When she came out to open the Lanz store in Carmel she met her future husband, Robert Smith, who had been the first Western Union manager in the village. He later became an automobile dealer on the peninsula. After her marriage, Mrs. Smith stopped her work in the fashion industry to raise her two children. When they were grown, she opened Lilli of Carmel.

"I have been here six days a week for many years and, though I love it and love to create, I am tired of devoting so much time to the shop."

To give her customers fair warning of her plans, Mrs. Smith said: "I sent out announcements three months ago and am very busy filling the orders that people have put in for before I close," she said.

Through the years, Mrs. Smith has known many of the well-known local artists and characters from Carmel's past.

"I knew them all," she said. "The writer Robinson Jeffers and Sam Colburn — the well-known watercolorist."

In the fashion world, Mrs. Smith feels women of today are fashion-conscious but will wear things they feel look good on them rather than what the designers say is fashionable.

STEVEN CROSWELL is the owner of the Orange Julius franchise located at the corner of Ocean Avenue and Mission Street to be replaced by a ladies shoe store in mid-1985 if the Carmel Planning Commission approves the shoe store use permit application Dec. 19. Croswell hopes to open a non-franchise at another location within the Dick Bruhn building complex on Ocean Avenue.

"The customer today is tougher to sell to. The off-price clothing stores and big department stores have to and can sell a designer at lower prices. It is hurting a lot of little shops," she said. "Many young people would love to design clothes but

For those who have not seen Mrs. Smith's designs or are fans of her work, there will be a retrospective show at The Beach Club in Monterey in April of 1985 for the benefit of the Institute of Foreign Studies.

NEW ANTIQUE SHOP OPENS

After 10 years as an interior designer in Paris, Phyllis Lapham has opened an antique shop in the Court of the Fountains on Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Though Mrs. Lapham and her husband have lived in Europe for the past 10 years, the California coastline is no stranger to them.

"My husband's family has been coming to Carmel since the 1930s," Mrs. Lapham said. "And we have had a house here since 1960."

The Laphams recently have moved back to the United States and now live in Pebble Beach.

Mrs. Lapham, who began her career as an art history major, said: "I have never liked history that is just the history of battles. But the history of art is intertwined with the lives and politics of the era."

"What we call antiques today were the daily artifacts of living. When someone is sitting on an antique chair, they are sitting on a chair that served their (people in the past) purpose and fortunately survived. It can be used today as it was used before."

"What I look for are pieces that have a special decorative value. They are not only good, solid antiques but have a decorative quality and are exciting to look at," she said.

She features 17th, 18th and 19th Century English, French and Continental antiques in the shop. The shop also has a selection of Chinese export porcelain and a large selection of Majolica.

"Majolica is lead-glazed pottery made in the mid-19th Century. It is highly decorative and has become an extraordinary collectors' item," Mrs. Lapham said.

Mrs. Lapham trained at the Ecole du Louvre, which "trained the students in the history of furniture and, since it was part of the museum, allowed the students to go on-site at museums. We or a teacher were able to pick up the chairs and look underneath to get real hands-on experience," she said. "You learn antiques by constant looking and teaching. There is always something new to learn. That is why people tend to specialize, because there are so many areas to get into."

"The interest in antiques is much more prevalent in the United States today. I believe the interest is due to a couple of reasons," Mrs. Lapham said. "During the hard economic times, Americans for the first time started investing not in the economy but in collectibles. "It was the first time that antiques were used as a financial refuge. The entrance of major auction houses into this country — such as Sothebys, Christies and Butterfields — increased the availability. Many things happened at once to increase the interest in antiques. Just watch the television and you will see all the serials that have to do with the 19th Century. There is a renewed appreciation of times past."

The Lapham's Paris apartment is featured as the cover story of the January 1985 House and Garden magazine.

Richard Shelby said his A & R Total Photography Studio will open Dec. 14 if "the equipment gets here."

The studio will be a place for professional and serious amateur photographers to rent a complete studio with full backdrops, lights, tripods, professional strobes, umbrellas, and shooting and posing benches. There will be professional manuals available for reference, Shelby said. There will also be facilities for table-top photography. Shelby said he will not rent cameras.

The studio will have a list of models and a list of shops that rent props for photographers to contact. Any interested photographer must make his or her own arrangements.

At this point, Shelby said, there are no darkroom facilities.

"Maybe in phase II," he added.

The front part of the studio will be devoted to a gallery to highlight the works of local photographers. The first show will coincide with the studio's opening and will feature the works of Lani Leonard, a graduate of the Brooks Institute of Photography.

"I am looking for local photographers to bring in their portfolios," Shelby said.

"We have also been contacted by a few people who want to conduct seminars and we will be contacting the school system about that," Shelby said.

Shelby said he will do some commercial and portrait photography himself in the studio.

Qualls and Associates suggest that new toys, canned food, books, towels, and toiletries would make appropriate gift donations. The firm is located at 200 Clock Tower Place, Suite 100, Building D, Carmel. For more information, please contact Patricia A. Qualls and Associates, Inc.

CARMEL BOARD OF REALTORS INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

Barbara Simmons, office manager of Fouratt Real Estate, has taken office as president of the Carmel Board of Realtors for 1985.

Ms. Simmons was installed at the board's annual dinner-dance Saturday, Dec. 8, at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Ms. Simmons has been serving as vice president of the board and as chairman of its Multiple Listing Committee for the past year. She has also been active in the California Association of Realtors, serving as a director.

Other officers installed for the coming year are Rodney Gbailfoi, vice president; and Hi Hennings, secretary-treasurer. Both are with The Mitchell Group.

New directors are Peter Baird, Annis Lembo and Tom Redfern.

Ms. Simmons expressed optimism about real estate activity in the Carmel area during the coming year.

"Lower interest rates, should they continue, ought to provide a real stimulus to housing sales on the Monterey Peninsula, and particularly in the Carmel area," she said. "We anticipate a strong year ahead."

Lawsuit calls into question future of Spanish Bay resort

THE FUTURE of the Spanish Bay resort complex now is in doubt as opponents have taken their fight from the board rooms into the courthouse.

A lawsuit has been filed in Monterey County Superior Court that seeks a new review of the environmental impact report for the 600,000-gallon-per-day wastewater reclamation project proposed by the Pebble Beach Community Services District.

Plaintiffs in the suit are the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, the California-American Water Co., the Carmel Sanitary District and the city of Carmel.

Judge Richard Silver has set aside the EIR and ordered a Jan. 25 hearing on the lawsuit.

The action charges that the Pebble Beach district has refused to cooperate with local agencies, has not acknowledged that the water district has authority over reclamation and distribution systems, and that the plant would infringe on the rights of Cal Am to market fresh water.

The wastewater plant is an integral part of the Pebble Beach Co. proposal to build the 270-room, golf course and 80-unit condominium complex at Spanish Bay in Del Monte Forest.

If the reclamation project fails, construction of Spanish Bay would halt because the Carmel Sanitary District simply does not have the sewage capacity for the resort. Currently, the Pebble Beach Community Services District contracts with Carmel Sanitary District for disposal of its sewage.

Pebble Beach Co. had plans for a late-December groundbreaking for the project if it could obtain the necessary Coastal Commission permits for its resort.

The Coastal Commission was to review the project late yesterday, but a decision was not expected to be made until its January session.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Some people believe that older citizens overuse the nation's health care system. Not according to a report by the University of Michigan Institute on Gerontology. Says Carol Hollenshead, the institute's associate director, people over 65 "are not hypochondriacs who jam physicians' waiting rooms and the corridors of hospitals." She says the elderly only tend to seek medical services when they are ill; they are no more likely to visit a physician than younger people; and when they do, there's more chance that the visit was initiated by the physician than by the patient.

***
"I used to think that old people just sat in chairs and read books and stuff like that. But now I know that is not true. They are the same as everybody else, only a little older." That's what one grammar school child wrote after participating in Project J.O.Y., in Oakland, California which matches up students and seniors as pen pals, then arranges classroom visits and interviews between the groups.

SERRA BICENTENNIAL

BY MSGR. FRANCES WEBER

Time marches on

LIKE MOST great leaders, Fray Junipero Serra was impatient. He once observed that "I do not say that everything must be done in one day but I do think that the ship should sail when the wind is favorable."

Progress at Monterey must have been excruciatingly slow by Serra's standards. It was only on Dec. 26, 1770 that the presidente performed his first baptism there. By the following May, 20 Indians had been received into the church, but it was a long process to catechize them.

The arrival of 10 additional friars in March of the following year augured well, for it meant that the founding of new missions would not be long delayed. On July 8, for example, Serra, two of his fellow friars, seven soldiers, three sailors and a few Indians from peninsular California left Monterey for the Valley of the Bears in the Sierra de Santa Lucia.

Studded with oaks, the valley had a river running through it that was filled with water, even during July. Serra chose a spot upon which the Mission of San Antonio de Padua should be temporarily founded - leaving the exact locale of the mission's future site to circumstance.

The bells were hung from an oak and an improvised altar was set up in an enramada on the Feast of Saint Bonaventure. In the beautiful sun-warmed valley of the oaks, Serra was seized with rapturous enthusiasm. He began to ring the bells and to them added the evangel of his clarion voice: "Come, you pagans; come to the holy church; come, come to receive the faith of Jesus Christ!"

For the next eight days the soldiers worked at building the necessary shelters for themselves and the missionaries and on the following Sunday Mass was offered for the first time in the improvised chapel which Serra had chosen as the correct site for the mission.

The account of Serra's enthusiasm at the establishment of the mission is in accord with his fervid character and his missionary zeal. Given the valley's picturesque setting and the long-enforced idleness of Monterey, no doubt he gave full vent to his pent-up emotions.

When he returned to Monterey, Serra set about transferring San Carlos Borromeo from the presidio to the banks of the Carmel River, with its view of the beautiful bay and rocky Point Lobos. On Aug. 24, he blessed the cross and sang the first Mass on the site.

HOW CARMELITES SAW IN DARK

While Carmel still has few street lights outside the business district, there were none at all in the early days. Residents out at night used to find their way with a peculiarly local lantern made of a punctured soup can with a candle fastened inside.

OBITUARIES

Eleanor A. Smith

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea for Eleanor A. Smith, a Carmel resident for the past 10 years, who died Nov. 29 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. She was 86.

Born Jan. 6, 1898 in Texas, she was a former resident of Santa Monica.

Survivors include two grandchildren, Susan Jansen of Soledad and James Sweeney of Maui, Hawaii. Her husband Lloyd died in 1973.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

David McKellican

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea for David McKellican, a Carmel resident for the past 20 years who died Nov. 30 at his home. He was 66.

Born Sept. 24, 1918 in Scotland, he served as a technical sergeant during World War II with the Army Signal Corps in North Africa and Casablanca. He later worked as a purchasing agent for Consolidated Electrical Distributors of Salinas until his retirement in 1983.

He is survived by his wife Gloria Macway of Carson City, Nev.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Elizabeth Cappell

Private services took place for Elizabeth Hamilton Chappell, a resident of Carmel for 30 years, who died Nov. 29 in Modesto. She was 88.

Born July 18, 1896 in Oak Park, Ill., she moved to Carmel in 1953 and moved to Modesto three and one-half years ago. During her residence in Carmel, she was an active volunteer for the Bach Festival.

Survivors include her daughters, Orianna Lind of Ben Lomond and Elinor Coleman of Modesto; her son, Edgar Chappell of Orinda; nine grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Lester Golden

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea for Lester A. Golden, a retired state fish and game warden whose assignments included Pismo Beach and Carmel Valley, who died Dec. 2 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 76.

Born June 15, 1908 in Coloma, El Dorado County, he began his career with the California Department of Fish and Game at the Lake Tahoe hatchery in 1935. He retired in 1967, and was a Carmel Valley resident since 1954.

In 1937, he was assigned to Pismo Beach with a promotion to marine warden, and in 1971 was awarded the warden's badge for his work in stopping the widespread illegal commercial shellfish poaching on Pismo Beach.

He served in the Navy during World War II and was stationed on the U.S.S. Lexington. He was a member of the Pacific Grove Masonic Lodge and the San Jose Consistory of Scottish Rite Bodies.

Survivors include his wife, Ruby O.; daughters, Heather L. Moore of Carmel Valley, Leslie E. of Monterey and Diann Weber of Portland, Ore.; a brother, Stanley of Oroville, and three grandchildren.

Private memorial services were scheduled. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Birdie Hancock

Memorial services took place Dec. 7 at Carmel Presbyterian Church for Birdie Louise Hancock of Carmel who died Dec. 4 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 61.

Born Nov. 8, 1923 in Thermopolis, Wyo., she was an eligibility worker with the Riverside County Social Services Department for 15 years. She retired in 1980 and moved to Carmel from Palm Desert.

She was a member of Eastern Star in Thermopolis, and of the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Phyllis Lewis of Carmel; a son, James Hancock of La Mesa; a sister, Evelyn Shaw of Caspar, Wyo.; three brothers, Merrill Brooks of Riverside and J.R. Brooks and William Brooks, both of Thermopolis; and two grandchildren.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

R. Hirschkind

Former Seaside Public Works Director Richard Hirschkind, a Carmel resident, died Nov. 21 at Community Hospital. He was 65.

Born Aug. 4, 1919 in Los Angeles, he previously was a civil engineer for Del Monte Properties, now the Pebble Beach Co. He worked for the city of Seaside for seven years, the last two years as public works director, and retired in 1970.

He belonged to numerous conservation organizations that promote the preservation of wilderness areas.

Survivors include his wife, Marjorie; two daughters, Lynn Hirschkind and Claire Hirschkind; and a son, Charles Hirschkind.

No services were planned. The family suggests memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society or the Big Sur Land Trust.

PINE WHISPERS

Barclay Ferguson's art featured at museum

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Museum of Art preview party Nov. 30 was a combination of six diverse exhibits.

A premier exhibit was a display of Barclay Ferguson's paintings, inspired by games and tin toys, in the Frank Work Gallery. Carmelite Ferguson and his Lady Harriet are an artist's delight by themselves.

Barclay, with his white shock of hair and beard, wearing a velveteen frock coat and kilts matched by his Scots burr, and Harriet dressed like a silver butterfly sparkling by his side, could only be upstaged by the paintings displayed upon the surrounding walls.

The paintings were a colorful exhibit of the artist's recent works. With all the pictures displayed, the viewer cannot help but catch a sly Scottish wink of mischievousness that marks Ferguson's charismatic personality and distinct skill.

A survey of Christmas cards beginning with the Victorian period are among the museum's special Christmas exhibit. A Christmas tree display featuring Norman Rockwell subjects hand-crafted by Mimi Weingarten and scale models of Williamsburg houses made by Mr. and Mrs. DuPre Sassard of Carmel Valley are featured throughout December.

Besides the main Ferguson exhibit and the old fashioned Christmas cards and doll houses, a selection of robot sculptures by Clayton Bailey are winking and blinking in the Maureen Coburn Gallery.

Head Jester and "chief kitchen mechanic" Barbara Walton, together with Bill Walton, Marilyn and Jack Cunningham, Alida and Dutch Lehman, Pat and John Totten and the entire Jester membership, kept the guests supplied with wine and cheese and assorted hors d'oeuvres.

Upstairs in the Heller Gallery — a balcony overlooking the Frank Work Gallery — are works of art by developmentally, emotionally or physically disabled people. The exhibition titled "Art by Special People" has been organized by Carolyn Berry Beaker through Handicapped Activities Unlimited in Pacific Grove.

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is at 559 Pacific Street, Monterey.

New Brushing Concept

"CURVED BRISTLES MAKE SENSE"
Because the bristles are bent to reach the sulcus. The sulcus is the space between the teeth and the gum where the bacteria grow, cause caries and bad breath. The outer bristles are curved and soft to protect and clean the gums. The center bristle is short and stiff to clean the top of the teeth.

SPIRULINA: THE FOOD OF THE FUTURE IS HERE NOW.

Spirulina Plankton is the most basic substance in the whole food chain... Spirulina's high-quality protein contains 18 of 22 amino acids required for health — and all eight essential amino acids in the correct proportion. Protein such as this is rarely found in non-animal sources, so Spirulina is popular with vegetarians. And Spirulina's protein, which provides sustaining energy to the human body, is up to 95 percent, digestible as compared with beef's 20 percent. Several kinds of unusual proteins called biliproteins, which occur naturally in our own bodies are found in Spirulina. Spirulina is low in calories, fats and sodium and amazingly high in efficient proteins (containing 60 to 71 percent) and all the cell salts and enzymes for body metabolism.

POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Naval Postgraduate School Staff and Student Wives Clubs invite all NPS wives and their guests to the Annual Christmas on the Quarter Deck, Thursday, Dec. 13. The social hour begins at 10 a.m. followed by a musical program at 10:30 a.m. in the ballroom. Tickets are $4 for members and $5 for guests.

SPANISH DELEGATION IN PEBBLE BEACH

A group of 87 delegates from Majorca, Spain were guests of The Lodge at Pebble Beach for a reception Nov. 18 before the group took a tour of Seventeen Mile Drive. They were escorted by Mrs. Bruna Odello of Carmel, who arranged the tour and also acted as a translator.

The delegates were in the United States on an official pilgrimage of the missions of California founded by Father Junipero Serra, a native of Majorca. On their visit to San Carlos Borromeo, the mission he founded in Carmel now known as the Mission Basilica, the delegates paid their respects at Serra's tomb.

Aug. 28 of this year marked the 200th anniversary of the death of Father Serra, who is being considered for sainthood by the Holy See in Rome.

MRS. BRUNA ODELLO of Carmel chatted with delegates from Spain at The Lodge at Pebble Beach. They are (from left) Bartolome Font Obrador of Palma, the coordinator of the Friends of Father Serra; Father Jose Roig of the San Francisco Church in Palma; Francisco Tarongi of Palma and Joseph Rosello of Petra, Majorca.

G.O.P. WOMEN TO HAVE LUNCHEON

The Carmel Republican Women's Club will have a luncheon meeting and installation of officers for 1985 at La Playa Hotel at 11:30 a.m. Dec. 13. Guest speaker will be Assemblyman Eric Seastrand of the 29th District. Guests are invited.

Those attending are requested to bring non-perishable food items for distribution by the Salvation Army. For information or reservations call Ruth Tully at 372-9005.

MIDGETT AWARDED BADGE

Pfc. Mark S. Midgett, a 1981 graduate of Carmel High School, has been awarded the Expert Field Medical Badge at Fort Bragg, N.C.

The badge is the Arm's highest non-combat proficiency award for medical personnel.

The test covered three basic areas: physical condition, a written examination and a field performance test.

Soldiers completed a 12-mile road march and carried a patient strapped to a litter through an obstacle course during the hands-on portions of the testing.

Local troupe returns home for holiday show

THE MAGIC Carpet Band, a five-member company of international distinction, will return to its hometown this weekend and present a show written by children that even has something for the grownups.

Kids' Writes — Home for Christmas is based upon stories and songs composed by eight students who attend Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley, as well as works by Canadian children. Both humorous and insightful, their compositions will be staged by The Magic Carpet as written, with the addition of a live musical score.

Show times are 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16 at Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

The Magic Carpet Band was formed in 1972 by James Mairs, director of Children's Theatre at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley. From the first The Magic Carpet was designed to appeal to the young. In 1973 the first show written entirely by children, Kids' Writes, had its debut. Since then the Magic Carpet Band has requested or simply received a deluge of material from children, which the troupe has performed around the world as well as on the Peabody Award-winning cable television series, Nickelodeon.

Both Kids' Writes and The Magic Carpet Band have undergone transformations during the past 14 years. "It's scaled down quite a bit," explained Wynn White, one of four original troupe members. The Magic Carpet Band has shrunk from its original 13 to five members: Wynn White of Carmel, Carlo Grossman of Seaside, John Rousseau of Pacific Grove and company director Jim Mairs. Steve Riffkin, a musician and performer from San Francisco, joined the company in 1980.

In 1975 the Magic Carpet turned professional and began touring the company with ever-evolving productions of Kids' Writes. The company won the Zeta Phi man, Steve Riffkin, Wynn White and founder James Mairs. The company will appear this weekend at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

Eta-Winnifred Ward Prize from the Children's Theatre Association of America in 1976 for outstanding achievement. It represented the United States at the Sixth Congress of the International Association of Theatre for Children and Young People in Madrid, Spain in 1978.

The Band guest starred on Captain Kangaroo's 25th anniversary special in 1981 and has appeared frequently at the International Festival for Young People in Vancouver, Canada.

The Kids' Writes concept snowballs as more children who view the show receive inspiration to send their original stories and poems to The Magic Carpet.

"They're performed uncensored and unedited," Ms. White pointed out. "It appeals to the kid in all ages of people."

There's a lot of music, even rock 'n' roll."

Thanks to children from Tularcitos School, the holiday version of Kids' Writes will feature such imaginative visions as a break dancing Ronald Reagan doll and stories titled Santa Lost His Brain, Henry the Rhino, My Tree and I Like Christmas.

The Tularcitos authors of Kids' Writes include John D. Day, 10; Brian De Shong, 10; Ian Dice, 9; Nicole Glanville, 7; Anthony Herro, 10; Kash Keel; Josh Sandifer, 8 and Jono Spaulding, 8.

A Carmel high graduate who appeared in Children of a Lesser God at York School last summer, Ms. White called The Magic Carpet, "a complete challenge to me as an actress." She performs vocals and percussions in Kids' Writes, in addition to demanding dance/mime-based onstage acrobatics.

Kids' Writes in 1981 became a cable TV series seen in 10 million homes. Three 11-year-old writers won special recognition awards from ACE, cable television's answer to the Grammy, for their work shown on Kids' Writes.

Although three members of The Magic Carpet reside locally, they travel with the show four to six months each year. Following tours to Los Angeles and San Francisco, the company plans to return to the peninsula to prepare Kids' Writes from the Nation's Capitol.

This new play is commissioned by the John F. Kennedy Center Programs for Children and Youth. The show will premiere at the Hidden Valley Theatre in Carmel Valley next March for a two-week run before it opens at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Tickets for the Sunset Theater performances will be available at the door. The event is sponsored by KWAV radio. For ticket information, call 649-0969.

Santa Claus stars in new musical

from around the Monterey Peninsula.

"It's an allegory about the spirit of Christmas being lost and rediscovered," explained Mikel Pippi, executive director of the Carmel-based school for musical theater.

Performers in Santa's Vanished range from age nine to students in their 20s. Santa Claus will be portrayed by Bart Williams, an actor who has appeared in such films as Enemy of the People and Tunnel Vision. Brought to Carmel by the Frohman Academy, Williams will co-star with Debbie Reynolds in the play, Every Year's after completing his Santa stint here.

Santa's Vanished is co-written and directed by John Ventantonio, a Los Angeles-based author/actor who has had two of his plays produced in Hollywood. His other credits include stage appearances with Vanessa Redgrave and Charlton Heston in Macbeth and with Richard Chamberlain in Richard III. He starred in the cult film, Private Parts and also performs in television commercials.

Susan Sachs serves as dance instructor and choreographer and Frohman students have received vocal instruction from Anne Saunders. According to Pippi, a Peninsula Young Peoples' Chorale will begin in February, also sponsored by the Frohman Academy.

Tickets for Santa's Vanished are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Senior citizens will be admitted free of charge. Show times are 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15 and 8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16. For reservations, call 625-6866.

Erica Lewis. The original musical will be staged this weekend in the theater at Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach.

ARTS & LEISURE CLASSIFIED ADS REAL ESTATE

The musical will be staged Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 15-16, in the theater at Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach.

Produced in conjunction with the Carmel Unified School District, Santa's Vanished will feature 65 Frohman Academy students

'Music of Christmas' presented

The Monterey Peninsula Choral Society's 23rd season opens with three "Music of Christmas" concerts this weekend at the Carmel Mission Basilica. Concerts begin at 8 p.m. Friday through Sunday, Dec. 14, 15 and 16.

The choir's main work will be Giacomo Puccini's Messa de Gloria. Soloists will be John MacAllister, bass and baritone, and Dan Parkerson, tenor. The Monterey Peninsula Chamber Orchestra will accompany the choir.

The 1984 "Music of Christmas" concerts will mark the Society's first performances under the direction of David Rupert, who took over the music director's position from Haymo Taeuber. Maestro Taeuber directed the choir for 16 years.

Rupert brings more than 10 years of musical experience to the Choral Society. He is an alumnus of the University of Arizona, Tucson, where he majored in vocal education, and he has been involved in choral music and musical comedy in Arizona and California since he left college. A Santa Cruz resident, Rupert directs two choirs in that city, The Masters Society and the Community Men and Boys Choir, in addition to his work with the Monterey group.

Tickets are $8 in advance. For ticket availability, call 625-5610.

Sale assists Handicapped Activities fund

A collectibles and "you-name-it" sale is planned at Handicapped Activities Unlimited, 511 Grand Ave., Pacific Grove, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15. Proceeds will benefit H.A.U., a non-profit organization dedicated to helping people with disabling conditions — mentally, emotionally, and physically handicapped adults — to lead fuller and more rewarding lives.

Participants served by H.A.U. sort newspapers and recycle small appliances and televisions. Aluminum cans SCORNFUL SCROOGE eyes the grand prize in the "Preservation with Purpose" drawing.

Wildlife sanctuary, theater plan benefit

"PRESERVATION with Purpose," a benefit performance of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol, comes to the California Repertory Theatre at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 19. The evening is a benefit for both the theater and Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary, an organization devoted to the protection and preservation of California coastal wildlife.

Tickets for the special performance are $150 per person, of which $141.50 is tax deductible.

Ticket holders will be eligible for a selection of door prizes donated by local businesses. These include a 1985 Toyota Tercel from Victory Toyota, lunch for four at Triples, dinners for two at Fresh Cream and La Provence, and two days for two at Ventana Resort in Big Sur.

An informal, no-host cocktail reception will precede the performance. Music will be provided by the Nick Williams Trio. Doors open at 7 p.m., and A Christmas Carol will begin at 8. Cal Rep is at 125 Ocean View Blvd., in the American Tin Cannery Building, Pacific Grove.

For reservations or more information about "Preservation with Purpose" at Cal Rep, call 372-4373.

are collected, and the money received supports H.A.U. and pays clients according to rates set by various regulatory agencies. Contract work is done for local business, industry and organizations (as available) — stuffing envelopes, collating, sealing, labeling, folding and sorting for bulk mail.

Participants receive education in basic skills and receive art instruction. Yearly, since 1973, H.A.U. has sponsored an art show for artists with handicapping conditions. H.A.U. is funded by Unitec Way, the State Department of Developmental Services various grants and individuals.

Services for the handicapped began in 1964, part-time at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center. In 1965, a group formalized these services by founding H.A.U. Since that time, services have expanded from two days to five, from part-time to full-time, and H.A.U. now has the capacity to serve 22 people.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY WINSTON ELSTOB

A year in retrospect

THE YEAR 1984 will be remembered here for the variety of richness of its offerings and for the loss of board President Geraldine Houston who was a source of inspiration to all of us. We remember most gratefully her enjoyment of poetry, drama and music, whether light or serious.

We started off in January with Four Comics in Search of Material, a zany humorous program staged by Stephen Mooror with Paul Gaucher, Deke Houlgate and Michael Lojkovic. Their original style of humor and brilliant wit was very funny.

We also offered an evening with folk singers Rick and Lorraine Lee (who will be back next month) and a recital by soprano Margaret Clark. February brought the Rainbow Ensemble, good neighbors from Santa Cruz who gave us La Ronde. With enormous resourcefulness they turned Cherry Hall into a theater-in-the-round and amazed us with their skillful ensemble acting around the huge bed in the middle of the room. They were a pleasure to host.

Next came GroveMont's productions of Beth Henley's Crimes of the Heart, bringing laughter and pathos. Nita Raichart, Jeanne Wooster and Mickey Mosley Braun turned in high energy performances which won't be forgotten for a long time. Crimes was followed by another GroveMont production, The Woods by David Mamet, directed by Eileen Callahan with players Julie Graham and Stephen Mooror. Set on the porch of a lakeside cabin, this haunting play evoked yet another atmosphere in Cherry Hall.

April was gala month, when Congressman Leon Panetta gave us a benefit piano performance to introduce the young violinist prodigy, Misha Rosenker — a memorable afternoon. The "young musician" concert will become an afternoon event, thanks to Leon Panetta's generosity.

Summertime brought new classes and exhibits and a production by Carey Crockett's Unicorn Theater Presents of another David Mamet play, The Water Engine. Somber in theme and beautifully directed by Crockett, this was described by the Pine Cone reviewer as "a demanding piece of experimental theater."

We also presented an evening with Frances Horn who spoke with her usual spontaneous and trenchant wit and insight on the subject of "I Can Make Peace." On this same theme, July brought another panel discussion on "Human Issues in the Face of the Nuclear Threat."

We presented five exhibits and a number of classes in 1984, including Dick Crispo's "Art History and Mythology," Moore and Kinney's "Roots of Racism in the West" and a one-day workshop by Mary Jane Hennessey on "Self-hypnosis." We also gave several poetry readings and recently welcomed back Dan Gotch to direct an evening on Dylan Thomas, The Rack of Dreams. And somewhere in the year's events were tucked our fund-raising sales, without which we couldn't keep our doors open. Altogether, a year full of hard work, and anything but dull!

***

A gathering in Geraldine Houston's memory will be celebrated with Father Charlie Moore in Cherry Hall at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 22. More details next week.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

Amadeus: Peter Shaffer's Broadway hit about Mozart gets full, if lumbering, Hollywood treatment. Milos Forman directs. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema. 373-4777.

Beverly Hills Cop: Eddie Murphy portrays a Detroit street cop whose investigation of a murder takes him to Beverly Hills. Directed by Martin (Going in Style) Brest. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

City Heat: Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds are adversaries in a mystery set in 1933. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough Theatre. 624-4044.

The Cotton Club: Francis Ford Coppola co-wrote and directed this visit into the dazzling and dangerous world of Harlem's famed Depression-era hotspot. The cast includes Richard Gere, Gregory Hines, Diane Lane and Lonette McKee. Rated R. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

Dune: The desert planet Arrakis, known as Dune, is the starting point for an intergalactic holy war set in the year 10,991. Directed by David Lynch, the Dune cast includes Linda Hunt, Jose Ferrer, Max Von Sydow, Sian Phillips, Francesca Annis and rock star Sting. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Falling in Love: Meryl Streep and Robert De Niro, star-crossed commuters, meet and fall hard, despite their respective marriages. Directed by Ulu (True Confessions) Grosbard. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

The Gods Must Be Crazy: Coke bottle prompts strife among African bushmen when the chief, Xi, decides to run with it to the edge of the earth and throw it away. There he encounters "civilized" characters, and the laughter increases. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Koyaanisqatsi: Francis Ford Coppola produced this film that explores modern life "out of balance." At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Oh God, You Devil: George Burns takes on a dual role as a wisecracking God and suave Satan. Paul Bogart directs. Rated PG. Ends Dec. 13 at the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music, "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Runaway: Tom Selleck stars as a cop in pursuit of a madman (Gene Simmons of Kiss) who kills people with high-tech products designed to serve them. With Cynthia Rhodes and Kirstie Alley. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

A Soldier's Story: Based on Charles Fuller's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, the story follows a black Army officer investigating a murder. Howard E. Rollins Jr. stars. Directed by Norman Jewison. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

Starman: Karen Allen falls for an alien occupying the body of her dead husband, Jeff Bridges. John Carpenter directs. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

Supergirl: The comic-book character comes to life on screen with newcomer Helen Slater as Kora, traveling earth in search of a power source that will save her people. The cast includes Faye Dunaway, Peter O'Toole and Mia Farrow. Rated PG. Ends Dec. 13 at the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

The Terminator: Arnold Schwarzenegger plays the Terminator, a cyborg sent from the future to present-day Los Angeles to assassinate a woman whose life is destined to alter the shape of things to come. But a rebel soldier stalks him. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

2010: It's based on the Arthur C. Clarke science fiction novel about an epic space journey made by a team of Soviet and American scientists. Stars include Roy Scheider, John Lithgow, Helen Mirren, Bob Balaban and Keir Dullea. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70. 373-4777.

'World's largest office party' comes to Monterey

How large is the world's largest waterbed? The world's largest beach ball, or brussels sprout? Come and find out at the Hyatt Regency Monterey's "World's Largest Office Party" from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 19. It will take place in the Regency Grand Ballroom in the Conference Center, One Old Golf Course Road, Monterey.

The giant office party is open to the public and proceeds from admission benefit Cystic Fibrosis. The event co-sponsors are KWAV 97 FM Radio and KSBW-TV who will have their media personalities on hand as emcees throughout the evening.

There will be several "happy hour" priced cash bars set up in the Grand Ballroom, tended during the evening by special guest bartenders such as government officials, travel and restaurant industry personalities, media and private sector business individuals.

There will be numerous food booths offering snacks for less than $2 and music by the Quarter Moon Band, entertainment by mimes and magicians, and prizes given away hourly.

The ballroom will be filled with unusual props fitting the theme, such as the world's largest waterbed, the world's largest beachball, the world's largest pencil, the world's largest hanglider, the world's largest brussels sprout and the world's largest box of Godiva chocolate. The props are from local merchants and several will be given as prizes. Admission is a tax-deductible donation of $5 per person. For further information, contact the Hyatt Regency Monterey at 372-1234.

MUSIC CORNER

BY JO ANN LA TORRA

An upbeat start to the season

'CHRISTMAS Music at the Missions,' presented by the Camerata Singers (with a brass ensemble and chamber orchestra) directed by Vahe Aslanian, is recommended for getting the season off to a decidedly upbeat start.

Aslanian chose unhackneyed music without being eccentric, a pleasant change for those of us who have heard and performed Messiah too many times.

The Brass Ensemble opened with an arrangement of an Albion concerto. Originally for oboes, this work suffered a bit from transcription on the grounds of instrument capabilities. Italian baroque music demands a great deal of elaboration (the more familiar term, ornamentation, is also less accurate) and what is easy on the oboe is extremely difficult on the trumpet. Nevertheless, it was a good curtain-raiser.

The Camerata Singers appeared first in two motets by Giovanni Gabrieli, whose career spanned the period when renaissance was changing into baroque. Brass players were the first to perform Gabrieli extensively, having discovered the fantastic effects of his antiphonal music.

"O Jesu Mi Dulcissime," stylishly assisted by Rebecca Nelson on the un-stylish mission organ, featured a divided choir. Obviously, our humble mission is no match for St. Mark's in Venice in terms of available space, but the effect could at least be hinted at.

The work contains some of the manneristic chromaticism of the late renaissance and lends it a somewhat mystical twist. "Jubilate Deo," with the brass ensemble, is a brilliant, exciting work with ringing sonorities.

The chamber orchestra opened the second portion of the program with Cradle Song by the Russian Rebikoff. It was inoffensive, but really didn't add much.

In Terra Pax by the English Gerald Finzi, however, is a sensitive and expressive setting of the Christmas story. Finzi's style is conservative, but his technique is sure and supple and he can slide into sharply dissonant passages when the text setting demands it.

The vocal writing is such that the words can always be understood. It is generally lyrical, with angular passages highlighting certain portions of the text. The chorus and orchestra were joined by Katrina Carlson and Peter Tuff who discharged their soloists' roles effectively and with poise.

My information is that Tuff was a late replacement for an ailing baritone, and that he has been a winner in the Met auditions in San Francisco. Although he is billed as a baritone, the vocal quality tends toward the tenor and he has a very pleasant and easy upper register. Ms. Carlson, a lyric soprano, has a well-focused sound with mercifully little vibrato.

BUT ALL was not well in the Finzi piece. There were the strings. The intonation of the middle parts suggested that the players did not understand the music and didn't know their place in the scheme of things. Intonation is by no means so cut-and-dried that tuning at the beginning will ensure in-tune playing. The price of good intonation is truly eternal vigilance. It is to the credit of both chorus and soloists that they did not become unhinged.

The last portion of the program was devoted to the Christmas Cantata by the American Daniel Pinkham. Perhaps best-known for his keyboard music, Pinkham here reveals himself as a skillful composer for voices. The work is in three contrasting movements: "Quem vidistis pasteres," rhythmic and powerful; "O magnum mysterium" (a text that tends to inspire composers) an expressive movement with a low brass pedal tone and solo trumpets and choir above; and a "Gloria in excelsis Deo" that was precisely what that text demands. The choir set aside their music for the last movement, and sang as though they loved it.

Published in 1958, this is an early work by Pinkham. His style is primarily linear (possibly influenced by his being an organist and harpsichordist), and utilizes considerable repetition. Rhythms tend to follow natural lines, rather than being forced into measures, but they are never overwrought.

Gold star: in spite of a rousing ovation, there was no encore. Question mark: why no texts in the program? They would have been especially appreciated in the Latin works.

The program will be repeated Dec. 16 at the Old Mission Church in San Juan Bautista.

Toys for the needy collected in Carmel

THE CARMEL Fire Department will continue to collect food and toys for needy families on the Monterey Peninsula through Christmas Eve.

The fire department will accept donations in the form of canned and non-perishable foods, workable toys, money and any other appropriate gifts. Once collected, the donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off at the Carmel Fire Department between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily. The Fire Department is on Sixth Street between San Carlos and Mission.

For more information, call Mitch Kastros at the fire department, 624-1718.

Mary and Joseph's search for housing re-enacted on Friday

The traditional Monterey La Posada procession begins at 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14 at the Monterey Conference Center. A re-enactment of Mary and Joseph's search for lodging in Bethlehem, the procession dates to the 1830s and 1840s, during Monterey's Mexican era.

Those interested are invited to bring a candle and participate in the parade through the downtown area.

The procession will make stops at Larkin House, Colton Hall, Monterey Peninsula Hospital and Simoneau Plaza for caroling and then return to the Monterey Conference Center for a Pinata party and refreshments provided by the Doubletree Hotel. El Mariachi Mixtlan Band will provide music.

In case of rain, the program is scheduled for the same time inside the Conference Center.

The old adobes of Monterey State Historic Park will be decorated by candlelight, lanterns and enhanced by costumed volunteers and musical entertainment for "Christmas in the Adobes."

"Christmas in the Adobes" will take place 5 to 8 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, Dec. 19 to 21. Admission is $2 per night, $5 for three nights. Admission is 50 cents nightly for children ages six to 17.

Mexican refreshments will be served at Casa Soberanes, 336 Pacific St. on Wednesday, Dec. 19; Scottish-English themed at Stevenson House, 530 Houston St., on Thursday, Dec. 20.

For more information, call 649-2836.

GETTING DOWN TO THE BUSINESS OF LUNCH...

Spyglass at La Playa now offers a quick, yet elegant alternative. Instead of looking for that illusive parking spot in Carmel, you can be looking over the exciting menu in the Spyglass Lounge, while a valet parks your car.

The Spyglass Lounge presents a superb New York Steak Sandwich as the highlight of its appetizer, soup, salad & sandwich menu.

If more formal dining is your lunchtime pleasure, step into the lovely Spyglass Dining Room, where you will be treated to a complete luncheon menu.

For larger parties, your gracious hosts will be happy to reserve the Fireside or Garden Rooms for those lengthy lunchtime meetings.

Whatever your lunchtime requirement, we wish to place ourselves at your service.

THEATER REVIEW BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Staff Players' 'Angels' — colorful holiday fare

THE STAFF PLAYERS Repertory Company presents its annual Christmas greeting, Little Angels' Rest and Angels in Flight, at the Indoor Forest Theater, in Carmel.

Written and directed by Marcia Gambrell Hovick, Angels employs children from the Children's Experimental Theater and a stable of local adult professionals to enact this two-part Victorian-style melodrama, complete with downtrodden orphans, one-dimensional adult villains, a Geppetto-like toymaker, and toys that come to life.

There isn't a child on the peninsula who should miss this one because, in the first place, children relate best to their peers, and Angels is a rare opportunity to see so many children onstage at once.

Children also will enjoy the sensitivity Hovick applies to their feelings and capabilities, and last but not least, they will revel in the effectiveness of the orphans' and urchins' action, and in the meting out of stern justice to the orphans' oppressors.

In short, this is the stuff of which fairy tales are made, replete with palpable evil, miraculous intervention, and mystical overtones. But Angels is not a great fairy tale. Great fairy tales work their magic on children of all ages. For most adults, Angels will not hold up.

The satisfyingly one-dimensional world of Little Angels' Rest is jettisoned in Angels in Flight for a surreal, mystical world for which we have not been prepared. In Angels in Flight, the housekeeper explains the switch this way: "Time wrinkles once in awhile, and if you look closely you can see yesterday and tomorrow curled up into today."

This delightful premise is too major to be dropped into the second half of Angels like an afterthought, nor is it convincingly supported by the action that leads up to it.

Still, Angels has a lot going for it. As Gramonica Gouge, the wicked witch of the orphanage, Gwyneth Hovick is seething

Tough times at the orphanage

malevolence incarnate. Roger Henderson is likewise convincing as the heartless Mr. Hollowbody, a no-nonsense businessman who cannot even remember having been a boy.

The standout performance, though, is Thomas R. Sanchez's Cornelius von Bittenburn. In a very brief scene, Sanchez sketches his toymaker's character with delicacy and affection.

Angels also boasts endearing performances by a bevy of children who are clearly earnest in learning their art. All by themselves, the children makes Angels worth seeing. It is a delight, in this season of giving, to see so many children giving their best effort to this holiday entertainment.

All things considered, Angels is a holiday outing families will not want to miss.

Cal Rep's 'Christmas Carol' a delightful present

IN PACIFIC GROVE, California Repertory Theatre celebrates the season with a sparkling adaptation of Charles Dickens' beloved cautionary tale, A Christmas Carol.

The redemption of Ebenezer Scrooge, a mean-spirited old curmudgeon who has sacrificed every higher human emotion to the accumulation of a wealth that brings him no joy is as satisfying a story today as it was 100 years ago.

Cal Rep does justice to this traditional Christmas tale with a new script by producing director Ben Benoit and a repertory cast enlarged by the addition of 10 peninsula actors, including six children.

Dickensian London is recreated with sets that revolve to display both street scenes and a variety of interiors. Bright costumes, expert lighting, and sound effects intensify the play's holiday atmosphere.

And Jarion Monroe, as Scrooge, sets the tone for performances that are uniformly fine. His Scrooge is querulous but feisty, and his first encounter with the supernatural — the unexpected visit of the ghost of Jacob Marley — leaves his materialistic values intact.

His reversal, at play's end, is the more convincing because of the economy and skill with which he establishes Scrooge's character at the outset.

Morgan Stock is a robust and fearsome Jacob Marley, clanking chains and all, and an equally dynamic Fezziwig. Dana Kelly's Bob Cratchit is affectionately drawn and has a gentle humor that greatly informs this essentially one-dimensional role.

Susan Hegarty brings grace and skill to the Ghosts of Christmas Past, Present, and Future, employing variations in voice and posture to create distinct characters quickly. Masks created by Juanita Wolff add mystery to the ghosts' appearances.

Like Shakespeare before him, Dickens was a master of minor characterization. However slight the role, each character is unique. This production excels in this respect. Ken Hicks, for example, creates a lively, fun-loving Dick Wilkins, without so much as speaking a line.

Michael Flynn's undertaker is the definitive carrion crow, perched at the edge of the deceased Scrooge's ransacked bed. Barbara Lane's charwoman, Patricia Cullen's laundress, and Ken Hicks's Old Joe, are equally distinct, colorful minor characters. And Eric Baldwin's shining face adds a touch of wonder to the characterization of Tiny Tim.

Although the tale is abbreviated to fit within a two-hour performance time, its major elements are intact and its world joyfully recreated. This beloved classic is Cal Rep's festive Christmas present to holiday theater-goers. Adults and children alike will enjoy it.

Same Time Next Year

A quarter-century of American manners and morals is reflected in the comedy Same Time Next Year, which opens Friday, Dec. 14 at the Studio Theatre Restaurant in Carmel.

George (Dick Vreeland) picks up Doris (Nikki McKee) in a California inn in 1951 and they agree to continue meeting once each year. They're both happily married and remain loyal to their spouses, except for their yearly brief encounters. The comedy documents six visits, each spaced five years apart, and the changes in the lives of George and Doris.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant, located on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh is open Thursday through Sunday. Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the curtain at 8:30 p.m. Meal and show are one hour earlier on Sundays. Tickets: 624-1661.

Little Angels Rest, Little Angels in Flight

The Staff Players Repertory Company and the Children's Experimental Theatre combine talents to present the saga of runaway orphans, Little Angels Rest and Little Angels in Flight.

The productions continue Thursdays through Sundays until Dec. 16 at Carmel's Indoor Forest Theatre.

Little Angels Rest is the name of a Victorian-era orphanage run by the cruel Gramonica Gouge, played by Gwyneth Hovick.

Reservations are advised for this series, presented for eight performances only. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $6 general and $4 for students, seniors and military. The theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Tickets: 624-1531.

A Christmas Carol

Complete with music, song and surprises, Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol plays nightly except Mondays at The California Repertory Theatre. Curtain is at 8 p.m., with 2 p.m. matinees scheduled Wednesdays and Saturdays. Reservations are advised. Sold-out performances include both shows on Wednesday, Dec. 19 and Saturday, Dec. 15.

Cal Rep is the area's only full-time professional theater. Tickets range from $9 to $13, depending on the day of the week. Cal Rep is in the American Tin Cannery building around the corner from the Monterey Bay Aquarium, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Tickets: 372-4373.

Cole

Room at the inn

DORIS (Nikki McKee) arrives for her annual affair with George (Dick Vreeland) with a little surprise in the Studio Theatre Restaurant production of Same Time, Next Year. The comedy opens this week.

Monterey Peninsula College Players production of Cole, which continues in the MPC Theatre.

Directed by Sid Cato, the revue continues at 8 p.m. Friday and concludes its run Saturday, Dec. 15.

The story follows Cole Porter through Yale, Paris, Broadway and Hollywood. It includes such Porter hits as Wouldn't It Be Fun?, Another Op'nin', Another Show, I Love Paris, Night and Day, Anything Goes and I Get a Kick Out of You.

Tickets are $6 general admission, $4.50 for students, seniors and military, and $3 for children under 12. Tickets: 646-4213.

Hit Parade — A Salute to the '40s

A tribute to the song hits and performers of the 1940s concludes this weekend at the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre. Hit Parade — A Salute to the '40s will feature tributes to such performers as Lena Horne, Mickey Rooney, Frances Langford, Rosemary Clooney, and the comedy team Burns and Allen.

The revue plays Friday through Sunday, Dec. 14-16. The show begins at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 7 p.m.

Sunday. Admission is $5. The Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre is on Fourth Street and Fourth Avenue, behind the Beiter Dental Clinic at Fort Ord. Reservations: 242-6337.

With Love, Cupid

An original musical by Barney Hulse and Ellen Saunders about Cupid's problems in uniting lovers is staged at The Wharf Theatre on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. With Love, Cupid, will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sundays until Jan. 1.

Tickets are $6 and $8. Reservations: 372-2882.

Olio Revue

Highlights of the past year's olios distinguish the annual Olio Revue, presented each holiday season at California's First Theatre, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey.

The Troupers of the Gold Coast will bow at 8:30 p.m. each Friday and Saturday at the oldest theater in the state. Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and teens, and $3 for those 12 and under. For reservations, call 375-4916 after 1 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

Simic Galleries show Texas-inspired works

A CELEBRATION of sun-splashed bluebonnets and the rolling hills of Texas comes to Simic Galleries in Carmel this weekend.

Oil paintings by William Slaughter, who previously exhibited in Texas, Mexico and the Mid-Western states, will open with a champagne reception from 5 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15.

"It brings me great pleasure to create works of art that the public enjoys to view and collect," said the artist. "That is the mark of a fine painter, when the artist can create from inspiration and experience paintings that inspire and uplift the human spirit."

"I love my Texas homeland and I will never tire of painting her many faces and varied moods."

A self-taught artist, Slaughter has been painting professionally for nearly 20 years. He received a first place award for landscape art in 1968 and the Froman Award for best of show in 1973.

More than 30 of Slaughter's canvases will be displayed at Simic Galleries. Slaughter's work depicts a variety of subjects, most typically his Texas hill country scenes, as well as views of pastures, exotic wildlife and a selection of seascapes.

Slaughter is noted for his portrayals of the varied regions of Texas — cracked river beds, desert lowlands with scrub brush and bluebonnet bedecked hill country.

The Simic Galleries are in three locations on San Carlos and Sixth in Carmel. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. For additional information, call 624-7522.

Parks department seeks photographic help

Do you have an interest in outdoor photography? Do you have a flair for arranging photos and slides? If you answered "yes" to either of these questions, you may be interested in Monterey County Parks Department volunteer opportunities.

A volunteer photographer is needed to visit the parks and take prints and slides of park features and activities throughout the year, including special events such as the Wildflower Festival, Eagle Watch Tours and Coastal California Oktoberfest. Applicants should have a general knowledge of color and black and white photography and should possess a 35mm or four-by-five format camera. All film, flash and related photographic materials will be provided by the Parks Department. Volunteer photographers work on an "as needed" basis.

Someone is also needed to catalog and form a library of department slides and photos at the Parks Office in Salinas for five to 10 hours a week. All materials will be provided. No previous experience is necessary.

For information on these volunteer positions and others, write the volunteer coordinator, Monterey County Parks, P.O. Box 367, Salinas, Calif. 93902, or call (415) 424-1971.

Carmel residents featured in HAU exhibit at museum

Paintings by Carmel residents Charlotte Broudy and Stephanie Hancox are among the works featured in the yearly art show sponsored by Handicapped Activities Unlimited. Their paintings can be viewed through Jan. 10, 1985 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Charlotte Broudy's works are Woman of Justice, an acrylic, and Face of a Woman, an oil painting. Stephanie Hancox is exhibiting an untitled watercolor.

Of the 19 artists included in this exhibition, eight are physically handicapped, seven are developmentally disabled and four have combinations of mental and physical illness.

Since 1973, Handicapped Activities Unlimited has organized shows of the work of people who are "other enabled." The board of directors and staff maintain there are benefits to be gained by individuals who see their art displayed in a museum. According to Assistant Director Sally Young, "It is fulfilling and also challenging."

For more information about the work of Handicapped Activities Unlimited, call 375-0800.

ROUNDUP

Volunteers' role discussed in P.G.

How volunteers can most effectively aid the Pacific Grove Art Center will be the subject of a talk given by Cynthia Zuniga, membership coordinator for the center.

The lecture comprises the Wednesday, Dec. 19, "art sandwich" program. The public is invited to bring a brown bag lunch to the weekly series, which focuses on artists, collectors and gallery owners. The art center provides coffee and tea, and the program begins at noon.

Donation is $2.50 for non-members and $1.50 for members. The P.G. Art Center is at 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

Barclay Ferguson signs catalogs

Paintings, pipers and newly published catalogs will come together in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art at noon Saturday, Dec. 15, for Carmel resident Barclay Ferguson's catalog-signing reception.

The catalog he will sign has been prepared by the museum in conjunction with an exhibition of Ferguson's works inspired by tin toys and games.

A group of pipers will perform during the reception in honor of Ferguson, a native of Scotland.

The paintings will be displayed through Jan. 13 at the museum, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Sandved photographs featured

Nature photographs by Kjell Sandved will be displayed through Dec. 31 at the Fort Ord Arts and Crafts Gallery.

A native of Norway, Sandved is a lecturer and nature photographer for the Smithsonian Institute's National Associates. His photographs have been exhibited around the world and are in the permanent collections of several museums.

The exhibit can be viewed 2 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Visitors must obtain a pass at the entrance to Fort Ord to view the exhibit. For details, call 242-3584.

Children's orchestra performs

There will be a free concert of string music from 11 a.m. to noon Saturday, Dec. 15 in Choral Room M10 at Monterey Peninsula College.

Two groups will perform: the Monterey County Elementary Orchestra and the Junior High Orchestra. For details about the concerts or the youth orchestras, call 624-9541.

PEACE is one of Martha Mood's themes executed in stitchery. A slide show of her work will be presented at the Henderson Gallery in Monterey from Monday, Dec. 17 through the end of the year.

Slides highlight Martha Mood works

Slide presentations of the work of Martha Mood will be featured at the Henderson Gallery, Hawthorne and Prescott streets, Monterey. The 15-minute shows will take place several times daily from Monday, Dec. 17 through Dec. 31, with the exception of Christmas day. The presentation will highlight the works of the stitchery artist. A collection of original Mood stitcheries and the Portuguese tapestry translations of the artist's work will be exhibited in the gallery.

Martha Mood, a California native, later did her major work in stitchery art in Texas, where she died in 1972.

Seniors' Christmas party planned

The Concerned Senior Citizens Monterey Peninsula Club will sponsor a Christmas party at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 18 in the community room of the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey. Seniors are invited.

Guidelines available for museum photographic exhibit

Copies of the prospectus for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Third Annual Northern California Juried Photographic Exhibition are currently available through the museum, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Prizes totaling $2,400 and an opportunity for a solo exhibition of work in the museum are among the prizes to be awarded in conjunction with the exhibition.

San Francisco Art Institute Photography Instructor Pirkle Jones, a former assistant to Ansel Adams and an instructor for more than 30 years, has agreed to judge the photographs. His choices will be exhibited in the museum from January 19 through March 10, and the winner of the Best of Show award will, in addition to the $500 purchase prize, be scheduled for a solo show.

Entries will be considered within professional or amateur divisions; each division includes categories for black and white photography, color photography or alternate process photography.

"People who teach photography or sold $1,000 or more in photographs last year should consider themselves professionals," said Museum Director Thomas J. Logan.

Professionals and amateurs interested in entering the competitive must be residents of Northern California and are limited to no more than four entries per person. Entered works must have been done within the last two years, and cannot have been shown in competition. Dimensions of the works submitted must not exceed 20-by-24 inches, matted.

A $5 entry fee will be charged for each photograph entered, and all entries must be submitted to the museum by noon Friday, Jan. 11. Photographs will be insured by the museum.

Additional information is available by mail or through the museum office, or call 372-7591.

Chanukah dinner dance set

"A starry, starry night" is the theme of Congregation Beth Israel's fourth annual Chanukah dinner dance, scheduled Saturday, Dec. 22 at the Hyatt Regency on Mark Thomas Drive in Monterey.

Cost for the evening is $25 per person, which includes a buffet dinner and dancing to a live band.

Tree give-away is Saturday

The Carmel Forestry Commission will distribute free trees on Saturday, Dec. 15.

Hours are 8 a.m. to noon at the Carmel Post Office parking lot, Dolores and Fifth. To be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis will be 1,000 Monterey pines, 1,000 Douglas fir and 1,000 redwood bare root seedlings.

Yule Logs Magnifique

They're so delicious that it's hard to resist a yule log baked in Fifi's traditional French manner. Choose Buttercream with Coffee, Chocolate or Grand Marnier; rich Black Forest; or Chestnut yule logs in sizes to feast 5, 10, or 15 people.

Lord Barclay looks back on a productive '84

By ANNE PAPINEAU

FOR BARCLAY Ferguson, the trouble with being bestowed the title The Right Honorable, The Viscount Ferguson of Lamond, is "People like to think I'm a lord who happens to dabble

OPEN-HEART surgery has not slowed the pace maintained by Barclay Ferguson of Carmel, who presently has a one-man show of paintings at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

THE LAST Postman, 80-by-64-inches, is among the private collection paintings shown in the one-man show of works by Barclay Ferguson at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Jan. 13.

in paint. Painting is my life. The title comes from my art."

In his studio at Xanadu, a Mediterraneanesque home he remodeled on Scenic Road, Lord Barclay now devotes "12 midday to 12 midnight daily" to pursuing the art that brought him title, reputation and a living.

"Elfin" is a description often applied to this native of St. Andrew's, Scotland, yet he is the first to depart the land of whimsy to expound the practical aspects of an art career.

"In this area, they love losers," he exclaimed within earshot of Pacific waves. "They hate anyone to succeed. People come to Carmel to get away from it all."

Ferguson came to Carmel to discover what his friends kept praising. Before he landed in "Xanadu," he'd pursued his career successfully in Britain, Canada and Mexico.

"For young kids today, they can go into any part of industry and get a job in art — and I don't mean commercial art," Ferguson observed. "Every big company has an art department now."

Lord Ferguson knows what he is talking about. A sketcher and painter since childhood, he enlisted in the R.A.F. as the Germans threatened his homeland during World War II. It was on military assignment in Rome after the war that he began formal study of the rudiments of his art.

A benefit of Air Force enlistment, Barclay explained, was that "the government paid for my education."

"The greatest thing about Scotland is education is free. I didn't get to college until I was 23, but then the government paid for it," he exclaimed in rolling Scottish brogue. "I didn't have to rely on my parents. Unlike England, in Scotland our universities were full of ex-servicemen."

Ferguson established his precedent as an award-winner at the Glasgow School of Art, from which he graduated in 1951. He then served as stage designer at the Scottish Civic Theater before moving to London where he worked as graphic artist for several manufacturing firms.

FERGUSON emigrated to Canada and went to work as chief graphic artist and technical illustrator for Westinghouse.

"Every cent I've ever made in my life has been through art," he said.

In the late '50s, Barclay moved on yet again, this time to pursue his M.F.A. degree on scholarship at the Instituto Allende, San Miguel de Allende, Mexico.

He returned to Canada in 1959 and "for 10 years worked with the Canadian government concerning atomic energy. All the present generation of Canadian nuclear reactors — the original concept was designed by the artists working under me. It's an unpopular thing to talk about atomic energy, but on the moonshot, for instance, there were 1,000 artists working on that."

In 1970 Ferguson finally took the step that he said he'd "avoided for years — biggest mistake I ever made." He moved to the United States.

BRICKLAYER'S DREAM, a 36-by-48-inch work completed this year by Barclay Ferguson, is among the artist's paintings displayed at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Jan. 13.

"This is the only country in the world where you can go to the top if you're good," is Barclay's hymn of praise for his present home. "I've lived in Canada and Mexico, and in every other country you can only get so far. You could become divisional head, but not head of the company."

Ferguson established a studio in a ranch house beyond the village in Carmel Valley. "I wanted to get away from city life and get my head clear," he explained. "Then I moved to Pacific Grove."

For a brief span he served as director of the Pacific Grove Art Center, which he regarded as an invaluable introduction to the local art scene.

And it was locally that Barclay met Harriett, whom he married in 1978.

"I give thanks to Harriett or I'd be dead," said Barclay, white poodles to his left, a roaring fire to his right.

Plagued by heart maladies for years, Lord Ferguson underwent five-way bypass surgery in 1980. He credited Lady Harriett with "doing the homework," investigating surgeons and hospitals and recovery statistics.

"That was an interesting period. I never felt I would die. It's taken all this time through to this year to appreciate everything that's been done for me."

"It's taken three years to change my life. I feel that 1984 has been the greatest year of my life, because I've worked harder."

CAPPING an industrious year is Ferguson's one-man show at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. Approximately 26 acrylic on linen works, varying in size from 22-by-30 to 80-by-66 inches, punctuate the Main Gallery.

The works follow the "Tin Toy" and "Games" themes Barclay has pursued longer than any others. A costumed tin monkey beats a tin drum in Who Plays for Me?, while Where's the Fire? features a surrealistic commingling of tin waiter, firetruck and hat-tipping clown.

Barclay has pursued assorted themed works in his career, but tin toys retain their fascination. He collected the toys depicted in his paintings over a period of years. Some of them are keepsakes manufactured in the 1940s. Others come from as far away as Hong Kong and Japan.

He is a veteran of numerous one-man shows in Scotland, England, Spain, Mexico, Canada and the United States. But there is still an element of apprehension in such an exhibit, as Barclay will attest.

"You're really putting your soul on the wall," he pointed out. "Non-painters don't realize what a very emotional thing a one-man show is. It doesn't matter what you've done before — it's what is on the wall that you judge him by."

Ferguson's paintings, many of them borrowed from private collections, can be viewed at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Jan. 13. A catalog signing reception is planned at noon Saturday, Dec. 15, at the museum. A group of Scottish pipers will add music to the event. Admission is free to the museum, located at 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS

Water West Corporation has filed a request with the California Public Utilities Commission for a 2.65% increase in revenues from general metered service in its Rancho Del Monte Division. This increase is necessary due to the increased cost of power purchased from Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

The revenue increase requested will recover only the added costs. THIS INCREASE WILL NOT INCREASE PROFITS TO WATER WEST CORPORATION.

A comparison of the rates now authorized and the rates proposed follows:

METERED SERVICE	Per Meter Per Month
Quantity Rates:	Present Proposed
For the first 300 cu. ft., per 100 cu. ft.	$0.88 $0.92
For all over 300 cu. ft., per 100 cu. ft.	1.22 1.26

Service Charge:

The Service Charge is a readiness-to-serve charge applicable to all metered service and to which is to be added the monthly charge computed at the Quantity Rates.

Customers may communicate with the Commission concerning the proposed increase not later than 15 days after publication of this notice, by writing to the California Public Utilities Commission, State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California 94102, referring to File No. 602-19.

Publication Date: Dec. 13, 1984.

Anna Katz paintings featured at benefit sale

A BENEFIT sale of paintings by the late Anna Katz, "Carmel's Grandma Moses," is planned 5 to 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16, at Congregation Beth Israel in Monterey.

Mrs. Katz, artist, dress designer and long-time owner of a Carmel dress shop, died Oct. 7 at the age of 90. She moved to Carmel in the late 1920s, after operating a dress designer shop for some years in Hollywood that was patronized by movie stars of the era.

She ran her Carmel dress shop for 45 years before retiring at the age of 70. Mrs.
Katz then moved into a Carmel home of her own design.

A story published in a 1934 issue of the Carmel Pine Cone titled "Pine Cone Ads Bring Results in Far-Away Places" described how Anna Katz received a letter, with check enclosed, from a woman in Reno, Nevada. The woman ordered an item, sight unseen, from Mrs. Katz, after reading of it in the Carmel newspaper.

In retirement, Mrs. Katz started a new career painting memories of her childhood years in Russia and scenes of her travels. Her work was featured in art shows in Canada, New York City and in Carmel at the Sunset Center and Zantman galleries. Her paintings were also included in a traveling art show of the American Federation of the Arts.

The paintings can be viewed at Temple
Beth Israel, First and Park, Monterey.
Wine and cheese will be served during the silent auction on Sunday. Proceeds from the sale will be used to establish a memorial to Anna Katz at the temple. For more information, call 624-9541.

Stellar golfers to perform in January exhibition and clinic

Professional golfers Amy Alcott, Janet Coles, Juli Inkster and Alice Miller will be making return appearances to the Monterey Peninsula to perform in a golf clinic and exhibition to benefit the Helen Lengfeld Monterey County Unit of the United Voluntary Services, a nationwide charitable organization offering support to Guide Dogs for the Blind, Monterey County Braille Transcribers, Blind Service Center, Hospice, Junior Golf and other community needs.

Alcott, Coles, Inkster and Miller are "Helen's Girls" — products of the Junior Golf Programs in Northern California founded by Helen Lengfeld. Mrs. Lengfeld, a California Golf Hall of Fame member, is also founder of the United Voluntary Services.

The pros will present a golf clinic followed by a nine-hole exhibition at the Spyglass Hill Golf Course in Pebble Beach, noon to 3 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 13. Inquiries can be made by writing to Mrs.
Elizabeth Bush, P.O. Box
1157, Pebble Beach, 93953;

or call 625-GOLF. Sponsor tickets are available for $30; general admission tickets are on sale for $15.

Amy Alcott is ranked fifth on the 1984 LPGA tour with earnings of $220,412 and more than $1 million in career earnings. Juli Inkster is ranked sixth this season with $186,501; Alice Miller is 11th with $112,767 in earnings for the 1984 season.

Janet Coles, a native Carmelite, did not play the 1984 season due to injuries.
Coles was ranked 12th in 1983 with earnings of $125,000 and career earnings of more than $368,000.

BACKGAMMON BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

COVER THE BLOT

In the diagrammed position, you,
White, roll 3-2. How do you play it?
(Note that Black has two men on the bar.)

Perhaps your first thought is to bring two men down from your mid-point, planning to cover the blot on your 3-point if your next roll totals seven or eight. This plan succeeds if your next roll is 6-2, 6-1, 5-3, 5-2, 4-3, 4-4 or 2-2, a total of 12 out of the 36 possible rolls of two dice. (There's one way to roll each doublet; two ways to roll each of the other rolls.)

You can cover the blot in 19 ways out of 36 if you bring only one man down from your midpoint and move the other half of your roll within your home board, covering the blot on your 3-point but leaving a different blot on your 5-point or 6-point.
For example, you may move the two from your midpoint, landing on your 11-point, and the move the three from your 6-point to your 3-point. It would be just about as good to move from your midpoint to your 10-point and cover the blot by moving the

PUBLIC NOTICE

CITY COUNCIL CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE No. 84-19

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING ARTICLE 3A OF DIVISION 1 OF PART X OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE ALLOWING THE DISPLAY OF SIGNS TO ANNOUNCE ACTIVITIES OF CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS AND SIGNS IDENTIFYING PARKING REGULATIONS ON PRIVATE PROPERTY.

WHEREAS, City ordinances regulating signs have no provisions which would allow the placement of signs on public or private property for the purpose of announcing temporary activities of said charitable organizations, and

WHEREAS, allowing such temporary signs under reasonable design regulations serves a valid public purpose, and

WHEREAS, Section 549 of the Municipal Code allows the towing away of vehicles unlawfully parked on private property, when the parking regulations applicable to such property are posted, and

WHEREAS, City ordinances regulating signs have no provisions allowing the placement of signs identifying authorized parking on private property,

NOW THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea

does ordain as follows:

Section 1. PURPOSE. It is the purpose and intent of this ordinance to regulate all signs visible to the public within the City by establishing a process for review and approval and by setting standards and criteria for the design of signs.

Section 2. Article 3A of Division 1 of Part X of the Municipal Code is hereby amended in its entirety as indicated on the attached pages.

Section 3. VIOLATIONS. Any person, firm, or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employee or otherwise violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction. Any sign displayed or installed in any manner contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof.

Section 4. SEVERABILITY. If any part of this ordinance is found unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section 5. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordinance shall take effect thirty (30) days after final adoption of this ordinance.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 4th day of December, 1984, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Arnold, Maradei, Stephenson, Townsend.

NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the City Administrator for REMODELING OF CITY HALL, OCEAN & MONTE VERDE STREETS, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California. Bids will be received at the City Administrator's temporary office in Sunset Center, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California until 2 p.m. January 8, 1985, and then at said office opened and publicly read aloud.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the plans, specifications and other contract documents prepared by the architects, Fred Keeble & George Rhoda, AIA, 135 Webster Street, Monterey, California 93940.
Bids shall be submitted on the form to be obtained from the office of the Architects.

The information for bidders, bid bond, agreement, plans and specifications may be examined and/or obtained at the office of Fred Keeble & George Rhoda, architects — 135 Webster Street, Monterey, California.

Copies of the documents are obtainable by general contractors at the office of the architects by depositing SEVENTY-FIVE DOLLARS ($75.00) for each set so obtained. Reference copies are available for the use of subcontractors and material suppliers at bona-fide builders exchanges.
The deposit will be refunded when plans, specifications, and addenda, if any, are returned to the architect in good condition within seven (7) days after the bid opening date.

The owner reserves the right to waive any informalities, and/or to reject any or all bids.

Each bid must be accompanied by cash, certified check of the bidder, or a bid bond duly executed by the bidder as principal, from a surety company approved by the owner; in the amount of TEN PERCENT (10%) of the base bid, made payable to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. This check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract and furnish bonds as specified within ten (10) days after notice of award of the contract to the bidder, and will be retained as illiquidated damages by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea if the successful bidder fails to execute the agreement as herein stated.

The successful bidder shall be required to furnish a payment bond in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, and a separate Faithful Performance bond in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Attention of bidders is particularly called to the requirements of Labor Code 1773.2 and 1775 as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the Contract.

Contractor shall pay not less than the prevailing rate of wages for each craft as determined by the local wage agreements between employers and unions. Deductions from wages are allowed for (1) Federal Old Age Retirement benefits, (2) State of California Unemployment Compensation, (3) Federal Withholding Tax, and/or as otherwise stipulated by Public Law.

No bids shall be withdrawn for a period of thirty (30) days subsequent to the opening of bids without the consent of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

California's Challenging Sur Coast

One of the fine pioneer women of Big Sur recounted that "the world is made up of many different kinds of people and Big Sur has one of each!" So, too, properties along the Sur Coast vary greatly and most are one of a kind. We feel fortunate indeed to offer so many unusual properties for your inspection; ocean front, canyon, ocean view, mountain homes and acreages.

ON THE NORTH SUR COAST:

Otter Cove at north extremity of the Sur Coast, on the continent's edge: 1.42 acres - $394,000, 1.32 - $456,000.
